Wednesday, January 21, will see thousands of KZN children back at school to begin another year of learning and developing. Excited children from Durban South eagerly wait to welcome a new adventure.

While for some children starting school will be a challenge as they will enter a new year without any stationery or resources to aid them in their learning. (See page 4 for story)

Seen are some of the excited pupils from local Durban South schools who together with staff from the Rising Sun Newspapers wish all pupils well for their 2015 schooling career.

Cuttings Beach neglected, locals angered

Merebank residents, along with avid fishermen, who frequent the popular Cuttings Beach, are up in arms as the poorly maintained and neglected beach which is in the process of being upgraded has been put on hold due to unsafe and polluted waters. The concerned citizens are now calling on the eThekweni Municipality to provide them with answers as to why the renovations have been stopped.

As part of the eThekweni Beach Upgrade Plan, Cuttings Beach was listed as a priority to receive upgrading, according to residents who attended the meetings. One resident, Sonny Dorasamy, who has been fishing for many years at Cuttings Beach, said that he was excited about the upgrades. "It has been over 50 years since the beach ever received an upgrade. It's a disgrace going to the beach as we don't feel safe taking our children to play there. There is no security and no safety signs for swimmers. If someone drowns who will save them," said the irate fisherman.

"I was excited about what the upgrades will do for our community but due to there being a problem with the water, they suddenly stopped with the renovations," added Dorasamy.

Another resident, Mr Deep also expressed his concerns about the run-down beach. "For years, we have been fighting for a better beach for all. According to the plans, a proposed satellite police station and pedestrian bridge was to be built near the beach but nothing has been done," said Mr Deep.

The golden voice of Wentworth will live on Over 600 people turned up at the Christ the King church on Saturday to honour the memory and celebrate the life of Wentworth songstress Anthea Smith who passed on a year ago. The memorial was attended by well-known community figures including councillors and pastors who could only praise the woman who touched lives throughout her life and continues to be an inspiration even after her death. Mother of Anthea, Lorna Smith still finds it hard to come to terms with her daughter's passing. "We lived together alone and we did everything together, now that she is gone, I'm all alone," she sobbed. "Every day I look into her bedroom and I think of her. It's as if she is still there sitting on her bed," added Smith. Survived by her mother and twin sisters, Anthea Smith will be remembered by many for her golden voice that filled the churches as she praised and worshipped. "She performed for many church services and weddings and so on. So many people recorded her singing. After she passed on I always wondered if anyone had a video of her singing, and they did. It brought me to tears knowing that her passion and her god given gift was still spreading across in many homes," said the mother. Losing a child is not an easy experience to get over and every day Smith struggles with the pain of loneliness but she still shows her gratitude for the time that she was given to spend with her daughter. "Even though she was sickly, we still made sure that her life was fulfilled and that every waking moment we used the time we had together to enjoy life," said the mother. Despite her loss, Smith chooses to become an inspiration for other mothers who bear the brunt of losing a child either through disease or unforeseen events such as accidents or violence. "I wish to inspire other mothers and share experiences with them, I want to tell them that everything will be okay and to just pray hard. I know it's heart sore to lose a loved one, but with the help of God and the help of a friend you will gain strength, I'm coming out of this stronger every day," said Smith. The memorial service Anthea was said to be a colourful and happy affair as it embodied the life that she lived. "That's how she would of wanted it. It was as if she was there with us during that beautiful sermon. It was a perfect example of finding happiness even in the darkest of places," said Smith. Family and friends will always remember the day that the golden voice made a musical appearance in their lives, an appearance that no one will ever forget.

Mother and son fight off house break-in suspect

A Bluff mother and her son bravely fought off an alleged house break-in suspect after they found him using their toilet when they got home, recently.

It is safe to say that the suspect had met his match on the specific day when the mother-son duo walked into their apartment. Police reports state that when the two spotted the suspect, the son immediately got into a struggle with him.

It is believed that due to this, the suspect bit the son on his hand in an attempt to break away from the struggle. Reports further stated that the mother then noticed that the suspect was wearing her son's valuable watch. This angered her and she pounced on the suspect and ripped the watch off his wrist.

Following this, the suspect managed to flee the scene. The mother contacted the police, who responded to the complaint. She provided them with an accurate description of the suspect. Several officers, including the Umlazi K9 Unit and Metro K9 Unit were called out to the scene. Cnst Shaun Stanley and his patrol dog, Seun (Umlazi K9 Unit) and Sgt Shaun Jooste, Insp Dean Nieuwoudt and patrol dog, Guss, made their way to the scene and began investigating further.

By communication via radio, the suspect was eventually spotted by police. The officers verbally warned the suspect to reveal himself, however, this proved futile. The suspect moved deeper into dense bushes, near a local railway line. Metro officers and Guss continued their pursuit. The suspect did not respond following a few more verbal warnings. This prompted the officers to enter the dense bushes which led to the arrest of the suspect.

The suspect sustained minor dog bite wounds on his body and facial area and was treated at the Wentworth Hospital. He has been charged with house break-in and theft and a second charge of assault. He appeared in court and was remanded into police custody for further investigation and possible fingerprint leakage.

The management of the Brighton Beach SAPS commended the officers for their swift work. Patrol dog, Guss, was also commended. His handler, Sgt Shaun Jooste rewarded him with a pie and bowl of milk for the arrest as per tradition.

Proposed beach upgrade plans put on hold and co-ordinator of the South Durban Community Environmental Alliance (SDCEA) said that the water at the beach is contaminated and has been tested high in Escherichia coli (E coli), which can cause a life-threatening form of kidney failure called Hemolytic Uremic Syndrome, if the contaminated water is digested. However, Dorasamy, strongly disagrees, saying, "They informed us that the water is polluted and that fish have been poisoned but I have never heard of this fish or water poisoning us? Why does this stop the upgrades from continuing?"

D'sa who has raised concerns about the Durban South water system for many years, said that pollution from the industrial areas has had an effect on the water. D'sa said, "The lack of concern for the sanitation needs of poor people in peri-urban areas backlashes against all of us, including those who love Durban's beaches, because the excrement in the veld and overflowing pit latrines inevitably finds its way into our rivers which plume out over our beaches," added D'sa. "For the past five years, Durban has been experiencing a repeated water infrastructure collapse. Since then, we have suffered repeated incidents in which millions of litres of raw sewerage have been dumped into our city's waters," he added. "We will continue to fight for Cuttings Beach and we want the upgrades done now," said Mr Deep.

Numerous attempts were made to the eThekweni Municipality for comment, however, no one was available at the time of going to press.

The children line up for refreshments and snacks.

Wentworth soccer team empowers youth

Following the death of soccer player, Tremaine Marais, his team Merewent Suburbs FC, along with youth empowerment group, Children have a Dream (CHAD), joined together to honour the goalkeeper's memory by taking 100 children from around the Merewent area on a trip to Botanical Gardens in a bid to keep the children off the streets. The day was spent with members of the CHAD and Merewent Suburbs FC team giving each group a talk on topics that have had effects on children and community's lives such as gangsterism, the effects of drugs, sex and many other topics. CHAD team leader, Sheldon Francis, said that his team of 20 youth and 10 of the soccer team members all agreed that a change needs to be made in a community that is poisoned by violence and senseless death. "While the children were having fun learning about the animals and plants at the gardens, we seized the opportunity to sit them down in groups while they had lunch and educate them on important life skills that we hope they would take and keep with them throughout their lives as they grow older." The team management of Merewent Suburbs who will be engaging in a vast number of community projects that have been planned for 2015, said "We are taking soccer to a new level and we have earmarked areas in the community of Merbank, Mereridge and Wentworth and we will be moving into other areas as well. We and team CHAD are going to be the change we want to see in our community."

Isipingo church embarks on beach clean up

House of God Ministry Church in Isipingo Beach initiated a beach clean-up at Tiger Rocks on Saturday. Volunteers from the church worked tirelessly and left no stone unturned on their mission to clean up their area. "We do regular outreach work in the community, meeting the needs of the poor and destitute," said church member, Jane Lazarus. Despite the hot weather, the children and adults of the church pushed through with a smile on their face and dirt in their bags. Pollution has been a major problem in the Isipingo area and House of God Ministry Church hopes that the communities all over

Members of the church spent the day clearing the beach of all litter

Durban will use this as an example to clean up their beaches to not only improve the appearance of the environment but to keep the environment healthy and safe for all. "Our projects are sponsored by ourselves. Anyone who is interested can contact us," added Lazarus. For more information or to volunteer contact the church on HOUSEOF-GOD@vodamail.co.za or on 074-524-1199.

No stationery for the new year

The school year has begun and 2015 is looking promising and bright for thousands of pupils who have entered a new chapter in their schooling career. For some, starting off the year will be rocky as their parents cannot afford the added expenses of stationery and books that are vital for the child's learning resources. For one parent sending her child to school is important to her and her family but sending him on his first day without stationery is heart-breaking. "I can hardly make ends meet and knowing that he has no stationery while his friends do breaks my heart. He loves school and I don't want him to feel embarassed about something that I could not provide for him," said the mother. Each child in the above picture is said to have problems at home that stop them from getting stationery for school. The families already receive food packages from an NGO as they cannot afford food in their home let alone school stationery which is not provided by their schools. To help with stationery through donation contact Tracey Williams on 074-703-1393 or email on wentworthangels@yahoo.com

Clairwood community enlightened on drug abuse

Drug-dealing and drug abuse has become a top priority for Brighton Beach SAPS. Members took to the streets in Clairwood recently and distributed brochures enlightening members of the community, especially youth, about the impact and dangers of drug use. The brochure explores the different types of drugs that are available to the youth. Also included in the brochure are guidelines on possible indicators or symptoms that parents or caregivers must be on the lookout for with regards to drug use and dependency in children. Cannabis or also known as dagga is the most common drug used by young children when experimenting for the first time. The brochure defines this drug and also explains the various forms of the drug.

Drugs make children vulnerable to sexual violation as they become powerless and have no control over their mind or body. Drug-dependable children will turn to acts of crime to sustain their habit and even steal from their own community and family.

Parents, guardian and caregivers must at all times ensure that the health, wellness and safety of their children is a priority. If you suspect that your child is experimenting, using or is a drug dependant, please get help without delay.

The brochure was distributed during a knock and drop operation at various informal settlements within the Clairwood area, including the Pine Road bridge.

Brighton Beach management thanked members who were involved for their active participation in the campaign with the focus area being the conditioning of parents, guardians and caregivers on the impact that drug use, dependency and distribution has on their children within their community.

Two men arrested for Merebank robbery

Following the robbery of a man in his Merebank yard last Tuesday, two men have been arrested and detained. Sifiso Shezi, Delani Hlope and a third accomplice allegedly approached the victim while he was parking the car. One of the armed suspects then demanding his car keys while the other stole his cell-phone. The third suspect searched the boot and found R2,900 in cash that was withdrawn earlier at a Pinetown bank.

The men then fled the scene in white VW Polo that was parked across the road. "The victim managed to identify the suspects easily and due to this, the men were spotted driving in Marianhill area. The two suspects were arrested and the same vehicle was seized by members of Highway patrol. The third suspect had escaped," said Communication Officer, Lt Gumede. There were no shots fired at the scene of crime. At this stage there is no video footage.

Special operations yield two arrests for drugs

A number of special operations were conducted in various flats in Wentworth. Members walked in between the building, conducting stop and searches on people in search of drugs and other illegal possessions. The members, together with special units, entered some of the flats where drug activities were known to take place. An assortment of drugs was seized and one person was arrested for being in possession of 105 straws of suspected heroin in Wiest Road. Another suspect was arrested and was found in possession of 37 packets of rock cocaine, 24 grey mandrax tablets and cash to the value of R2,190 in the same vicinity. The accused was charged for dealing rock and was detained at the police cells. A box of live ammunition was found abandoned behind a power box in the Reiger Road flats.

Wentworth ECD prepares to scale up

Mrs Mari van der Merwe, ECCD Lead Person and KZN Provincial Manager for Save the Children South Africa, is passionate about the transformation and support of ECD. "Support for efforts to rapidly scale up quality ECD services for children 0-4 years of age is a top priority for Save the Children especially as it is widely acknowledged that there are still numerous gaps and challenges in the ECD sector. Use of the ECD Forum Model in Wentworth is an innovative approach which promotes building the capacity of ECD practitioners and having a support structure to meet the needs of Home and Community Based ECD services at grassroots level. The leanings coming from the development and facilitation of the Wentworth ECD Forum have been shared across KZN and nationally. There is as a result a lot of interest in the Forum Model amongst local and international stakeholders and the direct benefit to Wentworth is that a number of Provincial and Local Government Departments are now using the WECDF as a credible vehicle to drive their programmes and services in this community."

Save the Children has recently commissioned an independent, objective evaluation/study of the ECD Forum Model by the Human Science Research Council. The overall aim of study is to provide Save the Children with the evidence base for supporting the replication and scaling up the development of ECD Forums in KZN and nationally. Part of the study will identify the factors that have enabled the ECD sector in communities where SCSA has worked with forums to harness the value of working collectively to address needs and access opportunities in order to provide an effective ECD service.

Van Der Merwe is excited about what the future holds and acknowledges that Wentworth is certainly shaping the future of ECD in the province of KZN and nationally.

Members of ECD share a joke together.

Curves lends a hand to PinkDrive

A generous amount, just short of R136 000, was raised by all the Curves clubs and its members throughout South Africa recently. Individual clubs used creative ways to arrange and get involved in various fundraising initiatives in their clubs and communities.

Curves' joining fees were reduced by 60 percent to create an opportunity for women to start caring for their health and wellness for less. At the same time, a hundred rand of each new member's joining fee was donated to PinkDrive to care for those who battle to care for themselves.

Clive Robinson, Managing Director of Curves Africa said, "I have no doubt that the mutual passion for and commitment to women's wellbeing is the biggest reason why our relationship is going from strength to strength. Our clubs and members look forward to, and rally around breast cancer awareness and PinkDrive every October. It's our pride and joy that we've donated more than R600 000 to PinkDrive since we forged our relationship."

PM Modi called on the outgoing PM Manmohan Singh just after taking his oath of office.

The world's largest republic celebrates its 64th anniversary

On January 26, India will celebrate its 64th Republic Day in grand celebrations throughout the vastly populated country. A vibrant electoral democracy has been India's most enduring and endearing identity ever since India adopted a great constitution that made it a democratic republic with universal adult suffrage. This was considered by the developed countries as a foolhardy misadventure. Their skepticism was based on the ground realities of the time. India had been devastated by a deadly partition in which millions of lives were lost. It was an unequal, fractured caste based hierarchical society with 84 percent illiteracy and extreme poverty.

The 14th General Election in May 2014, was the biggest election in world history. As many as 554 million of 834 million registered voters exercised their franchise at 931,986 polling booths on 1.8 million electronic voting machines (EVMs). In sheer size, the Indian electorate is bigger than the combined voter population of each continent. In fact, it is like 90 countries rolled into one, not just in terms of numbers alone, but the complexities, as well.

India is undoubtedly the most diverse country in the world -multi-religious, multi-cultural, multi-lingual, and multi-ethnic, besides geographical diversity (deserts, mountains, plains, forests, islands, and coastal areas). We have all the world's major religions, 22 official languages and 780 spoken languages. The demands of this diversity can be mind boggling. Equally difficult are the other challenges of fighting terrorism, security threats, adjusting to globalisation and rising expectations of IT savvy growing middle class. A stage has come in India when holding a free and fair election is taken for granted. In fact, not holding one would be news. We must not let that happen. This is India's promise to its own people and to the world.

[SY Quraishi, a former civil servant, was the 17th Chief Election Commissioner of India. His earlier postings included Secretary Ministry of Sports and Youth Affairs, DG, National AIDS Control Organisation (NACO), DG, Doordarshan, the world's largest national broadcaster, et al.]

Wanted hijacker sought by police

Montclair officers are looking for the man in the attached identikit. We believe that he may be of assistance in a case of carjacking that occurred in the Montclair area on August 26 where a man was hijacked of his vehicle at gunpoint outside the Clairwood Hospital by two unknown suspects. Police are making an appeal to anyone that can assist with any information regarding the whereabouts of the person in the identikit to urgently contact the investigating officer Constable Mtshali on 031 452 1828/ 082 787 6839 or Crime Stop on 08600 10111.

Gokul Primary selected for scholarship

Aven Naidu, Managing Director of Avemel Logistics, together with his father, Nelson Naidu, and uncle, Ronnie Vengan, have selected Gokul Primary School to be the recipient of the Avemel-Vengan Scholarship which would cover the cost of school fees and uniforms of deserving pupils. Aven Naidu and his father are ex-pupils of Gokul Primary and see this as an opportunity to give back to the community. These scholarships will be presented annually at the school's awards ceremony. The first batch of five recipients and their parents were presented with their bursaries by the Naidu and Vengan families at the school's awards ceremony in December. Principal, Niren Naidoo, extended his appreciation to Avemel Logistics and Ronnie Vengan for their magnanimous gesture. He also added that the recipients were selected on the basis of being financially deserving balanced with academic achievement. Mr Naidoo elaborated that the dedicated staff of Gokul Primary takes pride in the holistic development of learners and it is heartwarming to see that the school has nurtured individuals like Aven and Nelson Naidu who are putting their social conscience into practice.

Goody bags handed out to community

Austerville Baptist Church recently took part in a drive that gave goodies to the children in the community. With the help of Mandletu, MCB Power Electronic, M&B engineering, Pestkill, Witbat projects and Riaan buses, the project managed to reach a large crowd that were grateful and happy for the goodies that were given to them. The drive is said to be a continuous project throughout the year. Members and sponsors joined together to put a smile on the children's faces.

FOSA announces wellness day date

A Wellness Day was held at the Merebank Shopping Centre recently. People of all ages had their blood pressure and blood sugar tested. Meals were provided and Doves Funeral Services provided valuable information to the public. The next Wellness Day will be held on January 31, 2015. Volunteers from Fosa, Denise Naicker and Lavi.

Taxi driver survives terror ride with hijackers

A meter-taxi driver ride after he had four passengers, who was taken on a hell picked up a group of turned out to be alleged hijackers. The suspects requested the services of the taxi, which was supposed to take them to Archery Road in Clairwood. The unsuspecting driver drove them to their destination and upon arrival, one of the suspects' tazed the driver and demanded that he hand over the vehicle to which he refused. The victim decided to drive off with the armed robbers inside, but one of the suspects tried to pull up the hand break while the other attempted to strangle the driver, causing him to collide with a stationary truck. The collision caused the vehicle to spin out of control. As the suspects jumped out the vehicle to escape, witnesses took action and managed to perform a citizen's arrest. Members of the Brighton Beach Crime Prevention Unit were on patrol and as they drove past the business premises, they noticed a group of people, who had gathered at the scene. When they established what the situation was, they moved into various directions to pursue the men. The officers managed to arrest all the suspects, recover the tazer and two knives, which were also found on them. The men were charged with attempted carjacking. While interviewing the suspects, one of them received a call from the person, who allegedly hired them to hijack the metered taxi. The suspect then revealed that the person, who hired them, owns a gun that is unlicensed. Warrant Officer Nathi Ndlovu, who led the crime prevention team, set up a sting operation and arrested the alleged unlicensed gun owner; however, he was not in possession of the firearm. A second operation was set up to apprehend the perpetrator and upon searching him, they found a 9mm Parabellum pistol and 17 live rounds of ammunition in his possession. Further investigations revealed that the firearm was reported stolen in 1998 in Vereeniging during a robbery. The firearm was sent for ballistic analysis to confirm if it had been used in the commission of any firearm related cases. The two men were charged for possession of unlicensed firearms and ammunition. The six men, aged between 20 and 32, appeared in court on Wednesday for various charges ranging from attempted carjacking to possession of unlicensed firearm and ammunition. They were remanded into police custody for further investigation. Brighton Beach management commended the taxi driver for the bravery shown by him, and the bystanders for apprehending one suspect. Warrant Officer Nathi Ndlovu and his Crime Prevention team were also commended for their efforts.

OUR CHOICE THIS WEEK... THEY look flawless on the red carpet, but do you know what lies beneath the skin?

2015 DEAD

BUSTED CELEB SURGERIES

- 1 Nicola Kidman
 NICOLE KIDMAN underwent breast augmentation, going for a small B-cup up from a C-cup. Of course she has never admitted this.
- 2 JWoww
 JWoww's face looks better and better. She eventually admitted the plastic, adding, "I'd be open to talking about it, but I don't." And we totally believe you JWoww.
- 3 Kim Kardashian
 THE ever-famous Kim Kardashian denied having any sort of plastic surgery besides Botox. Whatever you see Kim...
- 4 Britney Spears vs Kevin Federline
 FULL TALKY Britney Spears' face looks a lot wider than before. However, she has denied the claims that she had any procedures done.

- 5 Nene Leakes
 REALITY star Nene Leakes denied having a botox B and liposuction on her body. Frankly, she needed that one botox!
- 6 Megan Fox
 HOTIE Megan Fox denied having puffed lips, claiming the effect was from lip liner. We've heard that one before!
- 7 Lil Kim
 LIL KIM's poems say it all, but she still denies having had work done.
- 8 Blake Lively
 FORMER Gossip Girl star Blake Lively says her nose has been getting a lot of attention, one to confess why, Blake?

By James Siddall
When turbodiesel sales first began gaining substantial traction a decade or more ago, it was almost obligatory for motoring writers to point out in their road tests that these beasts were far removed from the asthmatic, lethargic old oil-burners of yore.

And now with some of the new-generation hybrid vehicles hitting the market it seems obligatory to point out that not all of the breed are inoffensive green machines designed for economy and low emissions at the cost of performance and charisma.

Some of the more famous cases, of course, number the formidable Ferrari LaFerrari, which with its petrol and electric powerplants running in tandem bangs down a biblical 588kW.

And then there are hybrid sports sedans such as the Infiniti Q50 S Hybrid here.

Electric dreams

Now drive one of these beasts and chances are that to the automotively illiterate you might have to not only explain that the Hybrid nomenclature doesn't denote a pallid fuel-sipper, but also explain that Infiniti is Nissan's luxury division. Rather what Lexus is to Toyota. At least I had to in my week with the car.

You see, Infiniti seems to be gaining traction rather slowly on the South African market.

In October last year, for instance, just 25 Q50 sedans found homes locally. Compare this to the almost 1 100 BMW 3 Series - the Q50's logical competitor - sold in the same month.

This despite the Infiniti Red Bull Racing and Sebastian Vettel link - and the fact that the brand was launched

Ride quality, of course, is superb, inclined towards sporty back in 1989, while in markets such as the US it enjoys formidable presence.

But driving an Infiniti does, at the very least, garner you a degree of exclusivity in the SA context, and its vehicles are quite simply superb.

The Q50, for one, has a sort of fluid, almost organic styling, and build quality, equipment levels and the abundance of high-tech are all to be conjured with.

The Q50 S Hybrid here packs the likes of Distance Control Assist, which uses laser to keep a safe following distance from the vehicle in front. Meanwhile, its Intelligent Cruise Control automatically slows you down when traffic in front slows, and then accelerates back once the way is clear. Technologies such as these aren't unique to the Infiniti. Other cutting-edge machines - and notably German ones - employ them.

But on the Q50 they seem to blend especially seamlessly, while there's no shortage of muscle with a silken 3.5-litre V6 motor combined with an electric unit pouring on 261kW and a massive 536Nm of torque. All of which runs through one of the better seven-speed automatic gearboxes that I've encountered.

Expect a run from rest to 100km/h in around 5.1 seconds and a fuel consumption in the region of 6.8 litres per 100km in the combined cycle.

Cut now to the interior. Aaah, that superbly sculpted interior, complete with twin LCD VGA touch screens and a brilliant Bose sound system, as well as the likes of dual-zone adaptive climate control and pretty much electric everything. Of course.

On the Q50 Hybrid - as opposed to the rest of the Q50 range - you also get what's billed as a world first on a production car. Namely Direct Adaptive Steering (DAS).

This "steer by wire" technology essentially allows the driver to adjust both the steering's response and weight to suit personal preferences.

On the move the machine conspires to feel muscular, controllable, tractable and perfectly predictable - even under duress. Ride quality, of course, is superb, inclined towards sporty, while those vast reserves of torque mean that pulling power is prodigious at almost all speeds.

And for this you'll pay R585,000, with only an AWD version of the rear-wheel-drive Hybrid sitting higher in the seven-model Q50 range.

Nice, Infiniti. Very nice.

Detroit Motor Show

autodealer^{RSS} 2

Japanese tech takes on American muscle

By Miles Downard
The Detroit Motor Show has roots running back to 1899; it's one of the biggest motor shows held in North America and given the Detroit motor industry's importance and history in the United States it's an apt place to hold such an event.

Being the mecca of American motoring, it's no wonder that Ford chooses Detroit to showcase its mettle. But this year the blue oval outdid themselves as it rolled out the brand new GT supercar, a car that can trace its bloodline all the way back to those lovely GT40s of the '60s.

Not to be outdone, Honda unveiled the production version of the long overdue NSX - the original of which was released over 25 years ago and one that Formula One legend Ayrton Senna had a hand in developing.

So, plenty of history floating about but more importantly two new supercars jostling for the limelight, both scheduled to arrive by early next year, each producing over 450kW and you'd have to admit both look rather good.

They are however two completely different takes on the whole supercar thing. Honda opted to follow the footsteps of the Porsche 918, Ferrari Le Ferrari and McLaren P1 by utilising a petrol-electric hybrid power unit that is complex and technical beyond comprehension.

At the heart of the drivetrain lies a turbo-charged V6 powering the rear wheels. Then there are three electric motors involved; two powering the front wheels and one joined to the petrol motor in the back to fill the torque gap while the turbo's spool.

All this is somehow connected up with a nine speed dual clutch automatic gearbox, sending power to all four wheels. Whew.

Underneath Honda 'optimised' everything - engine, motors, battery pack etc - to keep the vehicle's mass low and centred. The NSX uses a space frame design made from aluminium, high-strength steel and 'other advanced materials'.

The floor is carbon fibre to help take up torsional and bending forces and the body panels are built using a combination of aluminium and sheet moulding composite. There's fully independent, all-aluminium front and rear suspension, six-piston front and four-piston rear brake calipers with carbon-ceramic discs.

The Ford on the other hand is more brutish in its approach; big-ish capacity, big turbos, big noise.

Here they'll use a race-derived 3.5-litre V6 to which two turbochargers are strapped. There's an all-new direct fuel-injection setup for better engine response, a low friction roller-finger-follower valvetrain and a seven-speed dual clutch gearbox sending everything to the rear wheels.

Ford has also promised one of the best power-to-weight ratios of any production car.

And so to achieve that there's a carbon fibre passenger cell, aluminium front and rear subframes and carbon fibre body panels.

The Detroit Motor Show has turned out a great battle of the supercar-newcomers; one that sees advanced Japanese tech take on American muscle. Neither manufacturer confirmed any performance figures, but don't be surprised if both have 0-100km/h times a fraction over 3 seconds and top speeds nearing 320km/h. So, which is your favourite?

The new carbon-fiber, mid-engined Ford GT supercar, expected to go into production in 2016.

Eight-speed auto now in Amarok 4x2 double cab

The Amarok Double Cab has revolutionised the local 1-tonne bakkie market since its introduction in September 2010. One of the innovative technologies that Amarok introduced into the local bakkie segment was the 8-speed automatic transmission in January 2013.

Until now, this popular derivative was only available with a permanent four-wheel drive system.

Customers can now order the Amarok Double Cab Automatic with a rear-wheel drive system. The 4x2 derivative has a combined fuel consumption of 8.2 litres per 100km and CO2 emissions of 216g/km.

The additional gears make it possible to achieve a wider gear ratio spread between the 1st and 8th gears compared to a conventional automatic transmission.

As a result, the 132kW 2.0-litre BiTDI engine works more frequently in its optimal torque band. The 8th gear has been configured as a fuel saving overdrive gear that operates at reduced engine speed.

The 2.0-litre BiTDI has a maximum torque of 420 Newton metres that is available at 1,750rpm. The top speed of 180km/h is reached in seventh gear. It only takes 10.6 seconds to accelerate from 0 to 100km/h.

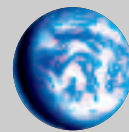

The Amarok Double Cab Automatic is offered with the top of the range equipment line, Highline. Its standard safety and convenient features include ESP with brake assist and Hill Start/Hill Descent assist, ABS including off-road ABS, driver and front passenger airbag, daytime running lights, park distance control (rear), 17-inch alloy wheels, Radio/CD (MP3 capable) with 6 speakers, Climatronic 2-zone air conditioning system, electri-

The service interval is at 15,000 km.

The additional gears make it possible to achieve a wider gear ratio spread between the 1st and 8th gears compared to a conventional automatic transmission.

Chev's Sonic LS

Brightens its image in Black and White

Late last year General Motors brought out slightly jazzed-up limited-edition versions of the Chev Sonic 1, 6 LS five-door hatchback.

Called the Black and White editions, the 200 cars come in Carbon Flash Black or Snowflake White Pearl, with the rear spoilers and side mirrors painted in what the factory calls Orange Rock. We were sent the White version and thought it looked pretty cool with its black 16" alloy rims shod with 205/55 R16 rubber.

The car is mechanically identical to the standard 1, 6 LS, but has an upgraded sound system - Chevrolet's excellent MyLink Infotainment system. At R205,700 it costs R4,000 more than the LS, and the extras are worth the additional damage to your wallet.

We liked the Sonic last time we drove it, and enjoyed this one as well. The Korean's build cars every bit as well as the Japanese - maybe better - and the test car felt pretty damn good on the road.

The ride is firm but plush, taking away some of the pothole anxiety I've developed over the last few years, the dash layout is appealing and the switchgear feels good and solid. The engine and gearbox is unchanged since 2011, with a 1,6 litre naturally aspirated four-cylinder engine offering 85kW of power and 155Nm of torque, which is reasonable enough.

The five-speed manual gearbox lets the side down though, because while everything's hunkydory around town, on the freeway the Sonic feels very buzzy, with 120km/h in top equating to 4,000rpm. It all felt far too busy for my liking, and a sixth cog would fix that.

The Sonic LS is significantly more pricy than the R168,500 asking price of the 1, 6 LS we evaluated four years ago but that's simply a sign of the times.

Its rivals at around the R200 mark include the Kia Rio 1,4 Tech, the Hyundai 120 1,4 Glide, the VW Polo Hatch 1,2 TSI, the Toyota Yaris 1,3 and the Ford Fiesta 5-door 1,4 Trend. The little Chev is a very worthy competitor in a tough market, and its engine delivers more power and torque than most of its rivals. The factory has to do something about that transmission though, because the engine sounds and feels as if it's working too hard at freeway speeds, which many will find disconcerting.

If I were looking to buy a Sonic I'd probably bite the bullet and spend another R26k or so on the 103kW RS version. Although that's not a true hot hatch, it's good looking, lively and really fun to drive without sacrificing real world practicality. And it has a six-speed manual gearbox.

The Chev Sonic White and its Black sibling comes with a 5 year/120,000km warranty with Roadside Assist for the full warranty period. There's also a three year/60,000km service plan. Service intervals are 15,000km.

Shreya Ghoshal.

Renowned singer Shreya Ghoshal returns to SA

Indian playback singer, Shreya Ghoshal, also known as the girl with a golden voice, will soon be returning to South Africa to perform at a spectacular concert, which is expected to attract thousands. Ghoshal has performed all over the world to 'sold out' venues and recently became the only Indian singer to sell out Royal Albert Hall, twice in a year. Accompanied by her talented group of singers and musicians, the star will sing some of the evergreen songs of Lata Mangeshkar and Asha Bhosle, along with her latest chartbusting hits including 'Sun Raha Hai Na Tu' from Aashiqui 2. The concert is a must for all those who love Indian music. The beautiful artist has mesmerised her fans with her melodious renditions and voice for quite some time now. The singing sensation, with seven wins, holds the record for most IIFA awards won in the category of Best Female Singer. Additionally, she also holds the record of earning nominations for nine consecutive years from 2006 till 2014. Alka Yagnik and Sunidhi Chauhan have won the award two times. Shreya has won the award in a record of three consecutive years (2012-14). Be prepared to witness the phenomenal voice from the 'Reigning Queen of Indian Playback' from Dola Re (Devdas), Jaadu Hai Nasha Hai (Jism), Barso Re (Guru), Teri Ore (Singh is King) Teri Meri (BodyGuard), Chikni Chameli (Bodyguard), Sun Raha Hai (Aashiqui 2), Samjhawan and Manwa Laage (Happy New Year) at the most anticipated event of the year.

Allen Pillay came out the winner in the battle with a shark

Catch of the day: Fin shark caught at Cuttings Beach

Allen Pillay made the catch of the day when he caught a Fin Shark at Cuttings Beach in Merbank on January 10. He used a mullet for bait and an Assasin Blade rod, Trinidad 30 reel, 200lb steel cable, 100lb leader line, 2x 11/0 hooks and .55mm double X line for tackle. The battle between him and the shark lasted almost an hour as he was determined to catch his second shark. Pillay thanked his friends and family for supporting him throughout his fishing career.

The proud team players of Young Cavaliers FC.

Gold Circle Bets on Job Creation

Gold Circle, the company that runs horseracing in KwaZulu-Natal, is looking to recruit more than 500 tote operators ahead of Champions Season that starts in May. The Vodacom Durban July, highlight of the Champions Season, presents Gold Circle with an enormous challenge in respect of staffing and every year the company embarks on a mass recruitment drive to source, train and employ additional tote operators. Many of these individuals are newly matriculated from the greater Durban community and for many it is their first experience in the formal employment sector. Recruits are given detailed training in product knowledge, operating a betting terminal and customer service before further preparation in a live environment at one of the racecourses. After the Champions Season, a number of the successful candidates are retained in the pool of operators to work at the three KZN racecourses and in due course some may find their way to the Branch network, the Gold Circle's telephone betting call center or head office environments to pursue a career in the horseracing industry.

Young Cavaliers bag another win

The excited supporters rejoicing over the great win by Young Cavaliers FC.

Young Cavaliers FC beat Umkhomaas team, Boys 2 Men 1-0 in an exciting match at the John Dory Sports Ground on Sunday during a friendly match for the SAB Castle League. The Wentworth soccer team has been making waves in Durban as they dominate on the soccer pitch, becoming one of the best teams to come out of the Merewent area. Dedicated supporters travelled to Newlands to support their beloved team.
