

SDCEA applies brakes on trucking park construction

Residents are urged to attend a mass meeting regarding the decision to turn one of Durban's lush green spots into a trucking facility

A legal battle is looming between the South Durban Community Environmental Alliance (SDCEA) and provincial government following the announcement to turn one of Durban's lush green spots into a trucking facility. A mass meeting to address the issue is to be held at the Merebank Community Centre on February 10 at 6pm. The provincial government's approval of the Clairwood Racecourse to be converted into a Trucking and Logistics Park, has sparked much fury among the community. SDCEA had gathered a group of experts to assist and wrote to the department providing substantial evidence why the development should not be granted. The comments provided were ignored and a decision was made in favour of the developer. After the department's decision, SDCEA provided a comprehensive written appeal followed by letters of support from community groups, in addition to the thousands of petitions signed by individual residents and schools that mandated the SDCEA to oppose the development of a trucking facility. The SDCEA have now called for a legal review. SDCEA's Desmond D'Sa said, "We are not going to go down quietly after the MEC approved the construction. We made an appeal to oppose the approval and were given 15-20 days to submit a legal appeal. We have now contacted a lawyer from the Legal Resource Centre and will be taking this matter to court. There are many issues that still need to be

From policeman to advocate

After serving his community for almost three decades, commander of the management information centre at Isipingo SAPS, Cpt Kumaran Pillay will be embarking on a new journey. Cpt Pillay will no longer be arresting criminals on the streets, but will be making sure that they stay behind bars. He begins his new adventure as a lawyer at his own practice. The charismatic individual completed his law degree through UNISA in 2008. "I have a Diploma, B-tech, LLB in Law. I really worked hard to open my own practice to continue helping those in need," he said. Cpt Pillay, 44, joined the police force straight after completing his matric year at Merebank Secondary in 1989. He enrolled in the police academy and in 1990 was appointed at Wentworth SAPS. In 1991, he relocated to Isipingo SAPS and served at the station for 24 years. "My dream was always to become a police officer. I was passionate about protecting people and always stood for what was right. I believed in justice so through hard work and determination, I was able to achieve my dream."

Cpt Kumaran Pillay will be embarking on a new journey.

"It has been an honour working in the the police service. I have had many highs such as receiving accolades for my good work done in the community, and I was able to shake hands with the late President Mandela." Coming from humble beginnings, Cpt Pillay, who has three children, was fortunate to have a great support system throughout the years. "My father was always encouraged me to persevere and never give up when situations were hard to deal with. My wife, children and mother have always been there to support me in all my decisions. I am also a spiritual person and believe with God all things are possible." Speaking about issues facing the community, Cpt

Pillay focused on the importance of youth developing positively without negative influences such as drug and alcohol abuse and engaging in crime. "The youth of today are influenced by their environment and that is what controls their actions. I believe for them to be successful, they need to be disciplined and always show respect." Cpt Pillay said the new beginning will give him more time to spend with his family. "I will also catch up on some reading, go trail walking and just be put my feet up," he said. Station commissioner, Col TJ Shelembe said, "We will be losing a great policeman, but we wish him well in his future endeavours."

"We will fight to the end" - SDCEA

addressed." D'Sa further added, "Now, we will be looking at every detail, be it how minor, there will be no stone unturned. From the inception of this development project, the entire process lacked meaningful public participation due to the fact that the appointed consultant (KSEMS) and developer (Capital Property Funds) did not consult thoroughly in each and every local community that will be affected by this development." D'Sa said that only one open day meeting, hosted by the Merebank Residents Association (MRA), was held, and that a few people attended, as pamphlets were distributed to only one road in the area. It was also found that there was inadequate information compiled in the traffic assessment regarding research on pedestrian usage in relation to the time period in which it was done. "They did traffic research in December when children were on holiday from school. That is not a proper assessment," said D'Sa. The decision will have serious ramifications on thousands of children and workers commuting in and out of Merebank, Wentworth and surrounding schools, as well as those that travel on the M4. There will be an increased risk of safety to all when 2000 trucks enter this property per hour. This will affect the already over polluted South Durban area which has high levels of vehicle emissions and poor air quality. This will lead to a more cancer prone community along with asthma and other related diseases. City Health monitoring stations at the Ganges Secondary School indicated the elevated levels of CO2. "We also brought to their attention the Chrome 6 that has been illegally dumped for years which is still under ground at the Clairwood Racecourse. We believe that was brushed over in the document," said D'Sa. Among the many other environmental concerns related to this development is the biodiversity on that site which will be negatively affected. Among the flora is the racecourse lily that needs to be protected. "We are vigilant and intend to fight back, using legal means and community activism. This applies to any development that will impact on the quality of life of the people of South Durban," said D'Sa. Residents are urged to attend the mass meeting.

Gadget helps police arrest criminals

Police are making remarkable breakthroughs in cases due to the help of the Max ID, an electronic finger print identification. Brighton Beach SAPS officer, Cnst Garth Mei of the Brighton Beach Management Information Centre, uses the gadget and links two to three suspects on a weekly basis. After a recent house break-in in Oriel Road in Brighton Beach, members of the Brighton Beach SAPS were contacted by a member of the Community Orientated Policing (COP), about a suspicious looking vehicle in the area. Members of the Brighton Beach Operational Support Division responded to the call. The officers traced the vehicle and found that the occupants were behaving suspiciously. Upon inspection, it was found that the vehicle was unlicensed and the driver was not a holder of a valid driver's license. Cnst Mei conducted further investigations using the Max ID, which revealed that one of the passengers, 37, was wanted on two separate cases; one in Phoenix for theft and the other in Chatsworth for heroin possession. The man was transferred to Phoenix SAPS. He appeared in the Durban Regional Court and was remanded to Westville Prison. Brighton Beach SAPS police spokesman, Cpt Louise Le Roux, welcomed the arrests. She said, "Constable Garth Mei is commended on linking the apprehended individual to two other cases. He links approximately two to three suspects on a weekly basis, supporting the Brighton Beach policing precinct, and other police stations, by ensuring that wanted persons are brought to book. We also commend the community for working together in curbing crime."

House break-ins on the rise in Brighton beach

Brighton Beach police are warning residents to be vigilant following numerous house break-ins in the area. The areas of concern are Fynnlands, Wentworth and Brighton Beach during the hours of 8am - 2pm and 12pm - 5am. Robbers force open burglar guards and sliding doors. Items such as flat screen televisions, mobile phones, iPads, laptops, tablets, notebooks, cash and clothing are being sought after. Police urge owners of electrical appliances to make an inventory list of all electrical appliances which include; make, model, IMEI numbers and serial numbers. This list can assist the SAPS to link arrested criminal to cases, and will enable them to track items illegal sold to second hand goods dealers. Police spokesman, Cpt Louise Le Roux said, "Community members should be vigilant of people walking/malingering the streets especially in residential areas which have stair cases, leading to the beaches or shopping malls, sport fields, over grown busy areas and places where construction or house renovations are taking place. Take note of these individuals' appearances and immediately phone 10111 to make a report for response purposes."

Employers beware of funeral scams

Police are warning residents who have domestic workers and gardeners to be aware of a new scam circulating in the district. Brighton Beach SAPS police spokesman, Cpt Louise Le Roux said, "Employers of these workers are contacted by fraudsters who inform them that their domestic workers or gardener has passed away. A request for a financial donation to assist with funeral expenditures is made.

They provide you with a bank account number and make requests of up to R2, 000. Later, the employers contact their workers or families only to discover that they have not passed on." Brighton Beach police request residents who may have been scammed to contact them 031-451-8059, 031-451-8060 or 031-451-8000.

Drug dealer busted outside primary school

Following a tip-off, police arrested a man outside Wentworth Primary School last Wednesday for possession of drugs. Police spokesman of Wentworth SAPS, Lt MP Gumede, said, "We received a call from a member of the community about a man in possession of drugs at the school. Cpt Houston, R/Cnst Khan and I proceeded on foot to observe the movement within the school vicinity."

Cpt Houston and R/Cnst Khan with the confiscated drugs and cash.

According to Lt Gumede, they approached the suspect after he left the school. The man was then searched, but nothing was found on him at that stage. Cpt Houston requested that he accompany them to the station where he would be searched in a private room. "The suspect was properly searched and members found a plastic packet containing seven sealed capsules containing suspected heroin and R270 in cash concealed in his clothing." Police would like to commend the member of the community who gave the information as well as the officers for the arrest. Wentworth SAPS would like to send a warning to the public that if any person who is searched and found to be in possession of drugs, no matter how small the quantity is, it will be seized and they will be charged. Pupils should not be used by drug peddlers to smuggle/hide drugs on them as police will search any suspicious persons.

“She was only fulfilling our dad’s last wish”

Medical student, Deepa Sooknandan, would have celebrated her 20th birthday with family and friends in Durban on Sunday, January 31, instead she is fighting for her life after falling from the fifth floor of a residence building in China. The Sooknandan family, who reside in Sayan Road, Isipingo Rail, spoke to the Rising Sun, about their youngest family member who was studying medicine in China. “Deepa was a dedicated pupil, who was determined to become a doctor and fulfill our father’s last wish for her to become a doctor. After struggling to obtain a place in a university in South Africa, she applied to the Dalain Medical University in China, and was accepted.

We managed to secure her sponsors to go. She commenced her first year of studies in March 2015 and was supposed to write her last exam on December, 30, and return home,” said her elder brother, Deeren. However, tragedy struck the family when they received a call from a friend of Deepa’s, stating that she was injured and in hospital. “It was approximately 9:20am here in South Africa when I received a call saying that Deepa had fallen. I thought it was a joke, but when I contacted the university, it was confirmed that she was in a critical condition,” said Deeren. Deepa’s mother, Annie, said they had then contacted the hospital who confirmed her injuries - the left side of her jaw together with her pelvis and ankle were fractured and that a contraption was holding her hip, ankle bone and pelvis together - and she would need surgery. However, they could not perform the surgery without someone to make final decisions. “We asked Deepa’s friend if he would help us by giving him the power of attorney. He had first agreed but refused at the last minute. I had to quickly acquire an attorney, who arranged for all the documents which were sent to the hospital. But we are facing another problem. Since police are still investigating the case and our sister is unable to talk, her medical insurance is not available due to these circumstances. The surgeries thus far amount to R500, 000, and we are pleading to the public to assist us,” she said. Deeren added, “We cannot really make assumptions as to what happen, but Deepa was petite and stood only at 1.56m tall. We don’t know how she could have accidentally fallen over a one metre railing. We do suspect there was foul-play. It is weird how everyone is always on their phones, but there is not a single video or news report of what happened that day. We will wait till the case is investigated. All we can hope for is that she receives the necessary help and come back home to her family.” The Sooknandan family request the help of the community. # Clairwood man found with rock and cocaine

An intelligence driven operation between eThekweni Inner South Cluster Crime Intelligence Unit, Durban-Organised Crime Unit, Shongweni K9 Dog Unit and Durban Public Order Policing Unit Project Task Team led to the arrest of a 41-year-old man in Houghton Road, Clairwood, for dealing and possession of heroin and rock cocaine, last Tuesday. The premises was monitored for activity after information was received about drug deals on Tuesday afternoon. The team swooped in on the premises and made their way to a back room. K9 unit member, Constable Khwela, and his dog, John, begun an intensive search where the canine led members to two metal containers. Upon inspection of the containers, members found banned substances - 224 pieces of rock cocaine and 71 capsules filled with heroin. The value of the banned substances were R12, 620. The man was charged with dealing and possession of cocaine and heroin. He will appear in the Durban regional Court shortly. Brighton Beach police spokesman, Cpt Louise Le Roux said, "We welcome the arrest and congratulate the members and K9 John on the positive outcome achieved."

Bluff man arrested for drug possession

A 49-year-old man was arrested in Island View Road recently after Brighton Beach SAPS received a tip-off that he was dealing drugs out of his room and selling dagga to youngsters. Members of the Brighton Beach Crime Prevention Unit followed up on the lead. Reservists Cpt Avril Fabré and Cnst Sam Mthembu secured the outer perimeter near his home, while W/O JJ Sonnekus and Cnst Sindisiwe Mthethwa entered the room. They found the man lying on his bed. The police officers informed the man of their suspicions, however, he denied it. The four members then conducted a thorough search of the room and found 51 small plastic packets filled with dagga and loose dagga underneath the bed. The man was arrested and charged for possession of dagga. He appeared in the Durban Regional Court on January 25. Brighton Beach management welcomes the arrest and congratulates all members involved for the seizure of the banned substance and the arrest.

Victim conned through 'bewitch scam'

Isipingo SAPS are warning members of the community of a scam that is targeting people who withdraw large sums of money from the banks. "There are more than 40 cases being investigated at the moment and the modus operandi is always the same," said communications officer, Cpt David Ragavan. In one such case, a man had withdrawn R20, 000 from a bank in Isipingo, and as she was returning to her vehicle, she was approached by an unknown man, who touched her on the left hand. When she looked at her hand, she found some greasy substance on it. While inspecting it, she had a strange feeling. A woman who was in the vicinity had noticed her discomfort and informed her that he had experienced the same occurrence and that she had been 'bewitched.'

While they were talking, the victim was approached by another woman who informed her that she was a nurse and had witnessed the incident and that she can help. She also confirmed that the complainant was 'bewitched' and that her money was tainted. One of the women made a call and a few minutes later, a vehicle pulled up with a man driving. They asked the complainant to accompany them so that the money can be 'cleansed.'

The complainant then jumped into the vehicle and was taken to Prospecton where the nurse alighted out the vehicle, went to a bank and came out with some leaves. She asked the complainant to rub it on her hands, then place the money she withdrew from the bank together with her bank card and pin code in an envelope and to not open it until she reached home. They then left the complainant near her vehicle and left. Later, when the complainant checked the envelope, she discovered that the money was gone and that the envelope contained cut pieces of newspaper. She also discovered that her bank card was missing and later received messages that money had been withdrawn from her bank account. The matter is being investigated by Isipingo detectives. Video footage showed that the same three suspects had used the victim's bank card to make purchases. "Through an informer network, two of the suspects were arrested and brought before court. They were found guilty of theft by false pretense and sentenced to five years imprisonment with a condition to compensate the complainant with R30, 000," said Cpt Ragavan.

Self-sacrificing Sayed serves community with pride

Compassionate, dedicated and self-sacrificing are just a few of the many great qualities the chairman of the Wentworth Victim Friendly Centre, Sammy Sayed, 67, of Merebank possesses. "I was inspired by our late President Nelson Mandela, who made great sacrifices for the people of country. I took great steps and told my family I want to help those in need. It was my desire to make a change in our community." After concluding his post as HOD at the Palmview Secondary School in 1997, Sayed decided to help members of the community, who were facing life-altering issues. "The community of Wentworth was dealing with many problems such as domestic violence, drug abuse and children with behavioural problems," said Sayed. He joined the trauma centre which was established 10 years ago to take care of women and children who have been victims of abuse. "There are approximately 500-600 cases of abuse reported a month. We are there to assist these families, who have nowhere else to turn. With funding from the Department of Social Development, we are able to run the centre. We have a full-time social worker as well as volunteers who are trained here." He added, "We also have a resource centre which has a computer room, swing room and a new chess room, all of which have been created to better our community. We have also undertaken the initiative to work with all schools in the area as we are one of the few institutes that have drug testing kits. We are able to do drug abuse checks. We also educate pupils on dealing with the dangers they will encounter and how to take care of themselves in difficult situations."

Chairman of the centre, Sammy Sayed.

Although he has a hectic schedule, Sayed is an avid reader. His favourite book is the 'Long Walk to Freedom' by Nelson Mandela. He also goes fishing with his family and on certain weekends collects food from functions and distributes it to the poor. "I get calls from caterers for functions held at the MTSS Hall to collect extra food, sometimes up to 10 large pots. My family and I then go out and feed the community." Sayed's goal is to replicate the trauma centre in Merebank. "I am doing something I am passionate about and being the voice for those who cannot speak for themselves. In my years of service to this community, I have learnt that we need to stand united and fight all obstacles together."

Wentworth SAPS nabs burglar

A 20-year-old man was arrested for a house break-in in Nerrissa Road, last Wednesday. According to police reports, Wentworth SAPS members, W/O Craig Brigetta and Cnst Thandi Ndlovu, were patrolling the area, when they received a complaint of a house break-in in progress. The members immediately responded to the call and upon arrival, they discovered a broken window and a step-ladder outside which was used to climb into the house. "While the officers were busy inspecting the premises, a gardener who is employed next door informed the officers that he had seen the suspect inside the house and also gave a full description of clothing he was wearing," said Wentworth SAPS police spokesman, Lt MP Gumede.

Two large orange plastic bags were found outside on the floor, which were suspected to be the stolen items from the same house. The members then left the premises in search of the suspect. While patrolling the area, the suspect was spotted. He ran into a dense bush nearby upon seeing the police van. W/O Brigetta and Cst Ndlovu chased the suspect in the bush and arrested him. He was positively identified by the gardener.

The stolen items were seized and the owner of the house was contacted, and was pleased by the quick response of both officers. The suspect was charged and appeared in Wentworth Court last Thursday. The case was postponed to February 4 and the accused will remain in custody.

One injured in bus crash

A man driving along South Coast Road was injured after a bus crashed into his silver VW polo, last Tuesday. When medics arrived at the scene, they found the twisted frame of the car on the grass verge near the intersection of Bluff and South Coast Road. "The occupant of the vehicle was examined by medics and it was found that he had sustained moderate injuries. The injured man was stabilised at the scene before he was transported to a hospital in Durban for the care that he required," said Netcare 911 spokesman, Chris Botha. The cause of the crash will remain a subject for police investigation.

Gold Circle bets on job creation

Gold Circle, the company that runs horseracing in KwaZulu-Natal, is looking to recruit more than 500 tote operators ahead of Champions Season that starts in May. The Vodacom Durban July, highlight of the Champions Season, presents Gold Circle with an enormous challenge in respect of staffing and every year the company embarks on a mass recruitment drive to source, train and employ additional tote operators. Many of these individuals are newly matriculated from the greater Durban community and for many it is their first experience in the formal employment sector. Recruits are given detailed training in product knowledge, operating a betting terminal and customer service before further preparation in a live environment at one of the racecourses.

After the Champions Season, a number of the successful candidates are retained in the pool of operators to work at the three KZN racecourses and in due course some may find their way to the Branch network, the Gold Circle's telephone betting call center or head office environments to pursue a career in the horseracing industry.

If you are matriculated with English and Maths and are interested in this opportunity read the recruitment notice in the classifieds section of this publication for more information.

Honda Civic Type R

A race car for the road

By James Siddall
This is it - arguably the fastest front-wheel-drive hatchback you can buy. Indeed, the new Honda Civic Type R turned in a lap time of just seven minutes and 50.63 seconds around the legendary 20.8km Nürburgring Nordschleife circuit in Germany. A time that's unrivalled by any other front-wheel-drive hatch. A time that conclusively nukes the admittedly valid preconception that Honda is the purveyor of ballies' cars.
 But then this incendiary performance isn't one bit surprising, with the mega-Civic banging down 228kW and 400Nm from a high-revving, turboed V-TEC two-litre powerplant. Top trot is a claimed, class-leading 270km/h, and the zero-to-100km/h run takes 5.7 seconds. I know you're dying to know.
 These figures only tell a little part of the story, however, and at full chat the Type R makes for a visceral, tactile, all-consuming experience as we discovered on the launch last week which included track work at Killarney Race Track. And then it was on to the open road, whence my driving partner was virtually robbed of coherent speech, being able to only exclaim such things as, "Oh my word (well, something like that)! What a car...what a car!"

 I concur. With the Type R redlining at a screaming 7,000rpm, while the driver fans gun-fighter style through the slick, short-shifting six-speed manual gearbox this machine makes clear that Honda is not indulging in hyperbole when they call it, "a race car for the road."
 It sure looks like one with dramatic, bespoilered, muscle-bound styling overlaid with a goosey-inducing sound track.
 As Graham Eagle, director of operations at Honda Motor Southern Africa, and one of my favourite industry execs, puts it, "The all-new Honda Civic Type R is the most extreme and highest performing Type R ever built, and sets new standards in the fiercely contested high-performance front-wheel drive hatchback segment."

 And oh does it handle! Torque steer - the bane of high-powered front-wheel-drive cars - is pretty much negated thanks to an innovative dual-axis front layout, while four-wheel electronic adaptive damping works sorcery on handling and stability.
 Bespoke high-performance Brembo brakes - with massive 350mm discs up front - and sticky Continental tyres enhance all this, and even under extreme cornering the Honda tracks like its on rails. And then there's the selectable +R driving mode which further sharpens engine and steering response.
 Equipment levels are really high, and you get the likes of automatically activated LED headlamps, keyless smart entry, cruise control, and a flat-bottomed steering wheel laden with multi-function controls.

 Red ambient cabin lighting is another nice touch in keeping with the car's character, while there's also a pretty intuitive infotainment system with a smartphone-like interface, plus the car gets a five-star Euro NCAP rating and six airbags, as well as the full armada of passive and active safety systems.
 That's the fun news. Not quite so wonderful is the announcement that Honda won't be bringing the gorgeous new NSX supercar to South Africa - partly because an anaemic rand would have meant a price of over R5-million.
 But in the meantime you can get a Civic Type R for R586,400. That includes a five-year/200,000km warranty - yes, 200,000km, a new standard Honda warranty across the range - and a five-year/90,000km service plan.

Chevrolet Cruze hatch

A whole lot of car

By Miles Downard
The Chevrolet Cruze has long been my favourite non-premium sedan, offering a spacious cabin, great value for money, great looks and a decent enough drive. Now Chevrolet has chopped off the backside - so let's see if the bum-less Cruze still wins me over.

Vehicle specs

Price: R287,000
Engine: 1364cc
4-cylinder turbopetrol
Power: 103kW
Torque: 200Nm
Acceleration 0-100km/h: 9.3 seconds (claimed)
Fuel Consumption: 7.6l/100km (claimed)
Service: Three-year/60,000km service plan and five-year/120,000km warranty

103kW and 200 torques to make the Cruze go, during which it'll sip at a rate of just 7.6 litres per 100km. Not too bad that.

The 'box is probably the biggest let down, being long in throw and quite imprecise in its action. Snap changes are out of the question.

Sportiness is definitely not a priority though, which explains the lack of feel through the steering. Nonetheless you'll find the Cruze pleasant to drive. It's comfortable, exceptionally quiet and offers decent levels of grip when required.

Verdict

Add into the equation all the equipment you could possibly need, all of which is standard and you've got yourself all the car you'll ever need. It really is that good.

If you can live with that rear end, or have a particularly short garage, the hatch will serve you well. Otherwise just get the sedan instead.

On the outside

Since the rear end was my least favourite part of the sedan, you'd imagine that hacking it off would solve the issues.

However, unfortunately, I must report that I'm even less of a fan of the back end now than ever before. It's as though someone in a board room somewhere decided that a hatch was a great idea for the range and were so psyched about it they forgot to inform the design team until the 11th hour that moulds were needed in the factory, like yesterday.

The rear end aside, I think the Cruze is still exceptionally good looking and the range hasn't really aged or tired since its launch in 2009. The bold front end and flared flanks give it an edge over the softer looking competition.

On the inside

The interior is characterised by harmonious, flowing lines with quality soft-touch materials used throughout. This is a high quality interior that really stands out amongst competitors. The design team worked wonders in making occupants at the front feel cocooned - using the twin-cockpit layout from a Corvette as a template - while maintaining the overall spaciousness of the entire cabin.

Behind the wheel

Powering my Cruze hatch was a 1.4-litre turbocharged petrol motor linked to a six-speed manual gearbox. There's
