Dalview opens maternity unit

Expectant mothers will no longer have to travel to neighbouring towns to welcome their new babies into the world.

A new maternity unit will officially open its doors to local moms-to-be at the Life Dalview Clinic on Wednesday, June 18.

The new unit was unveiled during a special function at the clinic on Thursday morning, last week.

In his speech, Life Healthcare CEO André Meyer, relayed a heart-warming story about how the Life Dalview Clinic has come "full circle".

"When I asked for some background information I was told this isn't just another clinic, this is a home," he said.

"I thought that was great, to hear that people feel just as comfortable and cared for in our clinic as they do in their own home. "But it turned out that this really was once a private house, owned by the Goller family."

Meyer explained how Gertie Goller, a local midwife, would drive out to the homes of her patients and deliver their babies.

"But since her patients were spread far and wide, she came up with a plan to transform her own home into a delivery ward," he said.

"Then instead of wasting time driving and only seeing her patients occasionally, she brought them all together under one roof where she could give them immediate attention at any time."

The family home became the Goller Nursing Home.

"Then the cunning doctors of Brakpan had an ingenious idea and started bringing their children to this house when they wanted to go out at night, leaving matron Goller to do the babysitting," continued

Meyer. "Mrs Goller eventually sold the home to a group of doctors so they could set up their practice here."

Gertie Goller's son John (70) attended the function and helped Meyer unveil a plaque to commemorate the event.

"I am delighted that we have now added dedicated maternity facilities to the mix, especially since I now know the touching story that lies behind this clinic that really is a home," added Meyer.

Other notable guests included physician and chairperson of the Medical Advisory Committee Dr Derrick Wilton and Dr Charles Theron -- one of the first doctors to establish a practice at the clinic.

Theron's daughter Eldri Vermeulen, who was one of the children Gertie Goller used to babysit, is now a pharmacist at the clinic.

The maternity unit will be joining the clinic's existing specialities of orthopaedic surgery, paediatrics, gynaecology and general surgery.

The ultra-modern unit boasts 17 beds with two delivery rooms, as well as a four-bed neonatal intensive care unit. There will also be a birth registration service, which allows parents to register their babies without visiting the Department of Home Affairs.

Youngsters flock to career expo

The 2014 Ekurhuleni Career Expo kicked off on Monday, and more than 3 000 youngsters, seeking advice and information on career opportunities, walked through the doors of the Alberton Civic Centre.

This is the second year the Ekurhuleni Metropolitan Municipality has hosted the expo, which is aimed at exposing graduates, school-leavers and young entrepreneurs to various employment opportunities available at companies in and around Ekurhuleni.

"We are also home to the continent's busiest airport; these two elements are very relevant and key to our economic development.

"The hosting of this exhibition thus fits into our strategic vision, which involves re-organising and revitalising industry, so that our communities can benefit from job-creating economic growth."

Some of the exhibitors at the two-day expo included South African Airways, SA Express and Mango, Ekurhuleni East and West Colleges, Boston City Campus, Siyafunda CTC and the Peermont Education Trust, engineering, procurement and construction management specialists Deltron Consulting, and civil engineering and project management consultancy Epitome Consulting.

Various government departments and parastatals were also present to share information on their job creation and entrepreneurship projects, including the Department of Public Enterprises, Department of Public Works, Department of Energy and the Gauteng Department of Sport, Arts, Culture and Recreation.

The expo ended on Tuesday.

Nico Botha voor een van die huise waarvan hy noodgedwonge die vensters, deure en gedeelte van die dak moes verwyder.

'n Persoon wat in een van die huise gewoon het, stap weg met sy matras wat hy vinnig uit die huis verwyder het.

'n Span van Nico Botha se mense het vroeg begin om die dakke van die huise te verwyder, om sodoende die inwoners te verdryf.

Hierdie jong kind het op die sypaadjie gesit by besittings wat uit een van die huise gedra is.

Huiseienaar sê genoeg is genoeg

Die eienaar van twee huise in Wendenlaan, wat vir maande reeds onwettig bewoon word, moes Saterdagoggend drastiese stappe neem om sy eiendom terug te kry.

Die twee huise is geleë in 'n area wat erg gebuk gaan onder prostitusie, die handel in dwelmmiddels en drankmisbruik. Dit is ook alom bekend dat dié area vir die wets-toepassers 'n groot kopseer is.

Nico Botha het besluit genoeg is genoeg en, nadat hy vir maande gepoog het om die mense op 'n wettige manier en met die nodige kennisgewing uit sy twee huise te kry, het hy Saterdagoggend drasties opgetree.

Volgens Botha is die twee huise, wat reg langs mekaar in Wendenlaan geleë is, aanvanklik op 'n goed georganiseerde wyse aan goedgekeurde individue verhuur.

"Soos dit maar in hierdie land en dorp van ons gaan, het al hoe meer en meer mense, waarvan sommige selfs onwettige immigrante is, die huise begin bewoon," het hy gesê.

"Ek was op die ou einde nie eens meer seker hoeveel mense daar gewoon het nie; ek het geen huur ontvang nie, maar daar was mense daar binne wat geld gemaak het deur kamers en selfs net 'n lê-plek uit te huur.

"My hande was afgekap en waar ek ookal om hulp aangeklop het, het dit op 'n doodloop straat uitgeloop."

Die huurders is, deur middel van 'n prokureur, 'n finale kennisgewing gegee om die huise teen 14 Mei te ontruim, maar dié stap het ook op dowe ore geval.

Saterdagoggend het 'n keelvol Botha met 'n span opgedaag om sy eiendom terug te neem.

Teen 7vm, terwyl meeste van die huisbewoners nog geslaap het, het Botha en sy span inbeweeg.

Onder die wakende oog van sekuriteitsmense is daar begin om die dakke van die huise, asook die vensters en deure, te verwyder.

Tientalle mense het gou uit die huise begin peuel.

In die tyd wat die Herald teenwoordig was, is daar ten minste 55 matrasse (waarvan die meeste dubbelbed matrasse was) uit die huise gedra.

Mense het hul besittings in sakke en plastiekhouders gepak en weggedra. Sommige het baie vinnig die hasepad gekies, terwyl ander by hul besittings op die sypaadjie bly sit het.

"Dit gaan nie vir my bloot oor die feit dat ek my eiendom moes terug kry nie," het Botha gesê.

"Ons almal weet wat in hierdie dorp van ons aangaan; daar is 'n toename in dwelmshandel en -misbruik, en prostitusie is 'n alledaagse verskynsel.

"Dit is hoog tyd dat ons begin saam staan om hierdie euwels uit te roei en die mense wat onwettig hier is, en hulself skuldig maak aan misdade, vas te vat.

"Daardie mense het geen reg gehad om in my huise te woon nie. Hulle wou nie kontrakte teken nie en hulle het nie betaal nie; hulle moes doodeenvoudig uit."

Verskeie verbygangers wat die gedoente Saterdagoggend aanskou het, het hul tevredenheid uitgespreek.

"In hierdie strate gebeur daar baie slegte goed en ons is bang. Dit is mooi om te sien dat iemand nou 'n plan gemaak het," het 'n vroulike verbyganger gesê.

Botha het gesê dat hy nog nie heeltemal seker is oor die planne vir die eiendom nie.

Seasoned criminal causes power surge

About 40 households in Brenthurst were reportedly affected by a power surge on Friday afternoon, last week, when a man tried to steal cables from a mini substation in the area.

The 32-year-old thief who, Brakpan police suspect, may have warrants of arrest for various criminal offences issued against him, was arrested at the scene of the attempted theft by members of the Brakpan Hijacking Task Team, at about 1pm.

"He broke the locks and door to gain access and was found inside the substation," said Capt Joep Joubert, spokesperson for the Brakpan

"Drugs and a bag of tools, including bolt cutters and sockets, were also found in his possession."

It is believed that the power surge, which allegedly fried electrical outlets, appliances and electronics in many homes, was caused when the man tampered with the substation's wiring.

The man faces charges of house-breaking, possession of drugs and possession of housebreaking implements.

His suspected warrants of arrest include possession of drugs, housebreaking and theft, and possession of stolen property.

Geliefde kleuterskoolhoof sterf langs haar baba

Hester Geldenhuys (36) is Vrydagoggend oorlede.

Die hoof van die Trippe Trappe Kleuterskool is Vrydagoggend in haar slaapkamer oorlede, ten spyte van haar man se verbete pogings om haar lewe te red.

'n Baie somber atmosfeer het Maandag by die kleuterskool geheers, waar Hester Geldenhuys (36) die afgelope drie jaar die hoof was.

Volgens Hester se man, Gerrie (37), was sy op kraamverlof na die geboorte van die egpaar se vierde kind, Candice (twee maande).

"Hester was Donderdagaand bietjie verkouerig maar daar was nie rede vir kommer nie," het hy gesê.

Gerrie is Vrydagoggend na sy besigheid in Wadeville, en die egpaar se drie ander kinders, Michelle (16), Calvin (11) en Quintin (5), is na hul onderskeie skole.

"Ek het pas nadat ek by die werk gekom het 'n oproep gekry van ons huishulp, wat my meegedeel het dat Hester baie sleg voel," het Gerrie vertel.

Hy het na hul woning in Sonneveld gejaag, terwyl hy ook die nooddienste na die huis ontbied het.

"Toe ek daar aankom het ek vir Hester op die vloer in ons kamer aangetref," het Gerrie gesê. Candice was by haar in die kamer. Ek het dadelik begin om kunsmatige asemhaling toe te pas maar ek het ook besef dat daar groot fout was," het Gerrie gesê.

Volgens hom het die nooddienste gou opgedaag en is daar verder gepoog om sy vrou se lewe te red.

"Ons kon ongelukkig niks meer vir haar doen nie," het Gerrie gesê.

Hy het vertel dat sy vrou die beste ma ooit was en dat sy geweldig baie uitgesien het na die geboorte van hul vierde kind.

"Kinders was Hester se lewe en, behalwe ons eie kinders, was al die kinders by die kleuterskool vir haar soos haar eie.

"Sy was 'n sonskynmens wat ongelooflik baie omgee het vir ander mense," het Gerrie bygevoeg.

Die mede-eienaar van die kleuterskool, Lorna Prinsloo, het Maandagmiddag aan die Herald gesê dat Hester sedert die ontstaan van die kleuterskool, in 2000, daar werksaam was.

"Sy was deel van ons; sy was 13 296 dae op hierdie aarde en dit is dae wat sy gebruik het om almal om haar gelukkig te maak," het Lorna gesê.

"Alles wat sy kon uitdeel, insluitend liefde, vriendskap, blydskap, vreugde en kennis het sy met 'n glimlag gedoen.

"Sy was 'n baie toegewyde persoon wat 'n groot leemte gaan laat."

Teen druktyd was die presiese oorsaak van Hester se dood nie bekend nie, en die begrafnisreëlings was nog nie gefinaliseer nie.

This male emu was found in a veld near Brakpan North. He is now safely in the care of the Brakpan SPCA.

Lone emu on the run

An emu -- a large flightless bird native to Australia -- was found wandering around in a veld near Brakpan North on Friday, last week.

The bird is currently being cared for at the Brakpan SPCA.

According to Tanisha Fourie, from the SPCA, staff rushed to the scene after receiving a call about a "stray ostrich".

"It wasn't an ostrich, but a very tame, male emu," said Fourie.

With the assistance of inspectors from the National Council of SPCA's Wildlife Protection Unit, and the Farm Animal Unit, the emu was safely loaded and transported to the society.

"He is very sweet and must belong to someone," said Fourie, adding that no one has come forward to claim him.

Fourie told the Herald that if the bird is not reclaimed within the stray period (seven days), the SPCA will find a suitable home for him.

The Caxton Reynolds Race kicks off

Karabo Masenya and Nathan Sikosana (absent) are representing Brakpan in the Caxton Reynolds Race. Masenya is seen with Brigitte Thysse, from Hirsch's.

The Caxton Reynolds Race kicked off on a high note, on Saturday, last week, at Hirsch's Boksburg.

The eager and energetic teams braved the cold weather all hoping to score high in their first task of the race.

Reynolds Race is based on the popular television's "Amazing Race", and will require participating teams to complete various tasks across the East Rand, in order to win the big prize.

The winners of this year's race win an all-expenses paid trip to Zanzibar, courtesy of the SA Reynolds Travel Centre.

A point system will be used to monitor the teams' performances and to score them accordingly.

The first team to finish a task within the given time walks away with bragging rights and top points that will be added to their overall score card.

The three teams with the most points by the end of the seventh week will all go into the finals that will be held in Springs, on August 2.

Some of the tasks included:

■ Balloon Lift

One team member had to keep a balloon in the air using their index fingers and place the balloon inside a washing machine.

■ Cookie Face

One team member placed an Oreo cookie on their forehead and using their facial muscles had to direct the cookie into their mouth. They needed to get four Oreos to win.

■ Tissue run

Teams had to take tissues out of a tissue box using only one hand. The first team to take out all the tissues wins.

Some teams tied with their scores, which is why they achieved the same points.

■ Meet the teams:

Nathan Sikosana and Karabo Masenya will represent Brakpan

Jenny Basson and Esté Reynecke will represent Springs.

Johan Ferreira and Sophia Viljoen will represent Kempton Park and Tembisa.

Liza and Petrus Smith will represent Boksburg.

Emmanuel Mgcina and Mduduzi Sihlongonyane will represent Benoni

Cheryl and Sean Whelan will represent Germiston.

Louise Brown and Cameron McLeod will represent Bedfordview and Joburg East.

Prema and Dheshan Naran will represent Joburg South.

The next task will take place tomorrow (Saturday).

Heinrich Beytendach, bestuurder van VC Super Spar, staan hier by die wvrag goedere wat reeds geskenk is.

Laaste kans om projek te help

Die Herald se winterprojek, wat in samewerking met VC Super Spar in Dalview aangebied word, het vanjaar 'n goeie jaar beleef.

Die publiek en besighede het hul harte behoorlik oopgemaak en sowat 400 kombere en 'n groot hoeveelheid warm baadjies, serpe, handskoene, mussies en kouse is bymekaar gemaak.

Die publiek kan nog tot Sondag goedere by die VC Spar in Dalview gaan skenk, waarna dit onder welsynorganisasies en behoeftiges van die dorp versprei sal word.

Die kinders van St Columba's School, in Benoni, het ook deur middel van 'n onderwyser van die projek te hore gekom en verlede week vier sakke propvol kleurvolle kouse geskenk.

V8s roar into life

The Rock Raceway circuit, in Brakpan, will shake into thunderous action when a full field of Outlaw V8 Sprints roars around the 400m circuit, on Saturday, June 14.

This event will feature the most sprints ever seen at The Rock. The Formula N circuit cars will also keep spectators riveted and glued to their seats, as the saloon car drivers jostle for positions around the tricky race circuit.

With plenty of chicanes and tight corners passing and overtaking each other can be hair-raising for the drivers at the best of times, but also very entertaining for the crowds.

There will also be a double dose of V8 action, as the Lexus V8 class will entertain petrol-heads obsessed with V8 engines.

Gates open at 10am and racing starts at 3pm.

For more information, contact the Rock Raceway office on 011 740 8315.

Slump in form continues

Brakpan Rugby Club's first XV suffered their first home defeat at Bosman Stadium in four years, in the Valke Peregrine League, on Saturday, June 7, losing against old rivals Springs.

After slipping up at PG Park, in Boksburg, the weekend prior to this game, it was crucial for Brakpan to win this one and remain in the chase for the number one position and automatic qualification to the 2015 Cell C Community Cup.

With Boksburg Rugby Club slipping up in Orkney, against Vaal Reefs, it is not all doom and gloom for the "Panne".

The game against Springs was as close it could possibly be, with the scores tied at 22-22 until the final hooter sounded, when Springs managed to slot a penalty to win 25-22.

Club chairman Harry Nieuwenhuis was not completely disappointed with the result, and is still positive.

"They [Springs] deserved the result and they never gave up," he said.

"We were the better team in the first half, but by then it was too late.

"Dewald Nel [fly half] unfortunately did not have a good game with the boot, and we missed many kicks at goal that could have won us the game.

"The problems with our line outs still remain a mystery; this was our strongest attacking asset in the last three years, but it has been our Achilles' heel this year."

The chairman added that the club will stay positive going into the second round of matches, in two weeks' time, in order to ensure qualification to the 2015 Cell C Community Cup.

"It is not impossible at this stage, but we would much rather qualify automatically, as we do not want to get involved in qualifying games against the Bulls' and Lions' second-placed clubs."

■ Try-scorers for Brakpan on Saturday were Thinus Ueckermann (two), Matthews Mtshali and Dean van der Merwe.

■ Other results: Brakpan's second XV won 19-7, the third XV won 67-0 and the u-21 team won 33-14.

The line-out has usually been Brakpan Rugby Club's strongest point in recent seasons, but it has not been effective in recent games in the Valke Peregrine League. This proved to be the case against Springs, on Saturday.

Citroën's innovative piece of art

The Citroën brand has always been synonymous with innovation and pushing the design envelope to produce stylish retro cars. The DS range is proof of this, as the DS4 won the Most Beautiful Car of the Year award when it was first launched.

The cheeky design lines and cleverly constructed interiors have made the Citroën an attractive proposition for individuals who love to flaunt their individuality and the new generation line-up wants to build on this. And with the likes of the Citroën Cactus - which will arrive locally next year - we are sure that funky, stylish cars will remain a staple choice on this French brand's menu.

But a car, which is difficult to ignore from a styling perspective, is the new C4 Picasso. Built as a people-moving MPV, it grows on the heritage of the Xsara Picasso, which was launched in 1999.

Now we know South Africans are more SUV than MPV driven, but Citroën believes it has something on offer that will be difficult to ignore. And while the C4 Picasso was launched overseas last year, we finally get to see this arty piece of motoring on our roads.

Initially only available as two derivatives - the Seduction and the Intensive - other models could join the fray at a later point.

Both derivatives will be powered by the 1.6-litre e-HDI 115 turbo diesel engine (it can also be found in a few of the Peugeot models, like the 3008). The oil-burning powertrain develops 85kW of power and 270Nm of torque and is transferred to the front wheels via a six-speed manual box.

The engine is nice and torquey, with good punch, but it's particularly good when cruising the open roads and with a claimed fuel consumption figure of 4.0 litres/100km, it's hard to ignore just how frugal this French gal is (the CO<sub>2</sub> emissions are 105g/km).

The top end speed is a shade under 190km/h and will take around 11.8 seconds to go from standstill to 100km/h.

However, certainly the highlight of the C4 Picasso is the clever use of interior space through clever innovation. The car is very spacious and with a host of storage compartments, you might need to stock up on things just so you can stash them. Luggage space is very generous with 537 litres capacity below the parcel shelf which can be enlarged to a very spacious 1 851 litres when the rear seat backrests are folded forward. In addition the powered tailgate can be opened remotely at the press of a button. Ushering in the new Picasso is a new vehicle platform, which cuts the weight down to 1 298kg, some 140kg lighter than the outgoing model.

The new cabin design integrates a host of technologies including a seven-inch touch screen, which has resulted in fewer knobs and buttons being utilised. There's also a 12-inch HD screen option available.

The touch screen incorporates all the buttons and functions usually found in the centre console, which can be accessed by merely touching the desired icon.

Other standard niceties include dual-zone climate control and an audio system with six speakers, USB connectivity, Bluetooth with media streaming and an additional USB socket. There are front park assist sensors on both models while the Intensive model also has front Park Assist sensors and the Park Assist system for easy parallel parking. Storage spaces abound, including two beneath the floor of the second row of seats.

As a family option, the Picasso does everything right; it gives the driver and passengers peace of mind thanks to the safety features like ABS brakes with Electronic Brake force Distribution (EBD), Emergency Braking Assistance (EBA), Electronic Stability Control (ESC) with intelligent traction control; automatic activation of the hazard warning lights in case of rapid deceleration or impact, six air bags and a deflated tyre indicator as standard, but it also boasts an array of features that will keep you entertained.

The fact that pictures can be uploaded to the touch screen is neat and the iPad adapter (on the top spec) in the rear for children will keep them occupied on long journeys.

Ultimately, the car isn't a bad offering for a family. It's frugal and futuristic and with packages available like the driver assist, which offers additional driver aids for around an extra R30 000, or the vision assist or luxury pack, the C4 Picasso can be built to your specific needs.

It does target a niche group of individuals, though, and the starting price is on the high side.

The Citroën C4 Picasso comes with a 3-year/100 000km warranty, 5-year/100 000km service plan, 3-year/24-hour roadside assistance, with the extra cost option of extending the warranty to 5 years/100 000km. Then there's the option of purchasing Citroën FreeDrive, which consists of a 5 year/100 000km warranty and a 5 year/100 000km maintenance plan.

Hyundai supersizes i10's grandeur

SEAN NURSE

MANY South Africans will remember the Hyundai Getz, which was launched locally in 2003 and which helped put the Korean brand on the map locally, with its low price, reliability and solid standard specification.

Enter the i10 Grand, a larger version of Hyundai's small car and the spiritual successor to the Getz. The budget segment is a tough place to compete in with the likes of the VW Polo Vivo, Ford Figo, Toyota Etios and the recently introduced Renault Sandero. Now, Hyundai looks to throw the proverbial spanner in the works with another well-sized offering which it expects will sell at a rate of around 600 units a month.

In terms of styling the Grand takes cues from its smaller sibling, the i10, as well as its B-segment brother, the i20, which helped it win a Red Dot design award recently. I couldn't help notice that from the rear it resembles its sister company's Picanto while the side profile and front end are unmistakably Hyundai.

Looking at dimensions and interior space, it strikes a middle ground between the i10 and i20 as expected. For example, its boot space is 256 litres whereas the i10 is 225 and the i20 at 295 litres respectively. The rear quarters are where the Grand really makes more sense than the regular i10 as it is large enough to accommodate adult passengers.

There's also the option of having different interior accents which include grey cloth with orange inserts, grey leather seats with a red accent as well as colourful dashboard inserts which add a level of customization to the package.

The 1 248cc engine powering the Grand produces 64kW/120Nm while fuel consumption is rated at 5.9 litres/100km for the manual and 6.9 litres/100km for the automatic. Having driven the manual derivative I can remark that while the engine is small it provides sprightly performance with decent lowdown torque while the gearbox allows for smooth shifts through to cruising speeds. I managed to achieve the claimed fuel consumption during my 170km drive, which was impressive.

At launch the Grand will be offered in three derivatives namely the 1.25 Motion manual, the 1.25 Fluid manual which features more standard specification as well as the 1.25 Fluid automatic.

Standard across the range is Bluetooth, USB and AUX inputs along with keyless entry, air-conditioning, central locking, front fog lamps, 14-inch alloy wheels, a full-size spare wheel, steering-mounted audio controls and a trip computer with fuel consumption and range indicators.

Pricing is key in this segment and at R139 900 for the Motion manual, R149 900 for the Fluid manual and R159 900 for the Fluid automatic. I believe Hyundai has a very competitive product. In terms of basic cost it is more pricey than many of its competitors, but offers better standard specification than some, which makes it very competitive in what is an increasingly tough segment.

Iveco make a bus for Daily needs

IVECO and its popular Daily, has a brand new taxi minibus, which has made an entrance in markets across South Africa. The new model has a new shape and new features such as Daytime Running Lights (DRL) and Blue&Me hands-free kit.

The aim of the new addition is to localise and adapt the vehicle to a South African perspective, and has therefore acquired the name, Daily Sisonke, together with a new logo, which means: We are all together, in isiZulu.

The New Daily Sisonke taxi accommodates 21 passengers with a maximum load of 350kg for luggage, fitted with an integrated rollover kit, safety belts on all seats and ESP9 brake technology to ensure passenger safety.

The taxi's cabin storage capacity has been modified by cohesive parcel tray installations on both sides of the inside of the cabin. To add to driver and passenger comfort, the vehicle is equipped with radio, CD and Bluetooth and an option for the seats to be covered in durable vinyl or cloth is also available. The large tinted windows all around and easy access through large sliding doors, together with additional steps, add to passenger benefits.

To improve the driving experience, the new Daily Sisonke has been fitted with a six-speed override synchromesh manual transmission with the gear lever located on the dashboard; the vehicle produces a maximum torque output of 350Nm and 107kW.

The new Daily Sisonke is an illustration of the continuous effort by the company to provide a vehicle that is adaptable, strong by nature, attractive, eco friendly with a Euro 4 engine (EEC emissions regulation) and most importantly, to compete in one of South Africa's most significant and vibrant markets. The new Daily Sisonke is available at all Iveco dealerships across South Africa. - Motoring Staff

3D printing gives Isuzu KB engineers the edge

RAPID prototyping, popularly known as 3D printing, is gaining global status across a range of industries.

At General Motors South Africa (GMSA), engineers have been working with this technology since 2007 when the company acquired a 3D printing machine to develop new prototype parts.

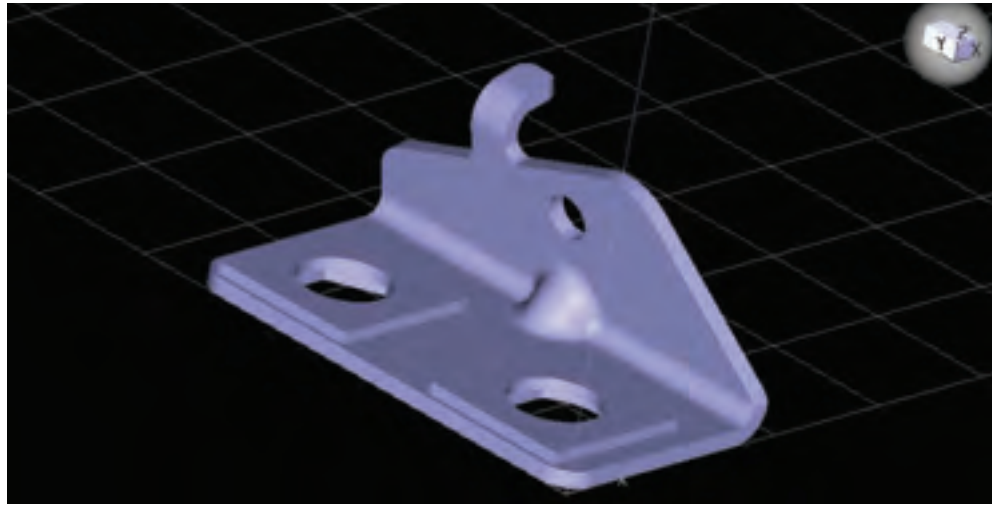

Since then the machine has played a key role in the localisation and validation process during the development of the 6th Generation Isuzu KB, which was launched in South Africa last year.

"We've used this technology to grow prototype parts of a range of components including plastic clips, mud guards, support brackets, air cleaners and air conditioner components, radiator shrouds, rear-step components, electronic module housings and the utility box for the extended cab variant.

"In addition, we often use the machine to make our own special tools and functional components to support our testing equipment which we use on a daily basis in the engineering workshop," says Dave Doubell, Validation Engineer at GMSA.

3D printing begins with a virtual design, which is created on modelling or Computer Aided Design (CAD) software. A Stereo Lithography File (STL) (format) is then fed into the 3D printer which translates the virtual design into a physical prototype part, building it layer-by-layer using a thermoplastic material called ABS plastic.

Vehicle Engineering Manager, Jessel Vencencie, and his team, use the technology extensively as it saves time and cuts development costs. He says, "Through this technology we are able to make functioning prototype parts which are then used to give us an early indication of how the actual part will function when fitted to a vehicle. 3D printing allows flexibility by speeding up the development process of parts as we fine-tune the design of a component for better form, fit and functionality."

The thermoplastic parts produced by the process can endure exposure to heat, chemicals, humid or dry conditions and mechanical stress.

"Development of the 6th Generation Isuzu did not stop when we launched the vehicle. We are constantly studying customer needs, feedback and warranty data to continuously develop and improve the capabilities of the KB. The beauty of rapid prototyping is that you can test components by installing three or four samples quickly without much cost. This allows us to try more options as we work to enhance the product," says Wendle Roberts, Vice President Engineering, GM Africa. - Motoring Staff

CRUEL CONSUMPTION FIGURES

Dear Editor

Your interesting opinion in Week 22 refers. It's very appropriate as, for the past five months, I've been disputing the marketing/selling published consumption of an automatic/diesel vehicle, purchased from a dealership.

In January I acquired a demo model from a dealer in Nelspruit with just under 2 000kms on the clock. Before doing so, I received a brochure the stated consumption for urban driving was 7.9/7.8 litres per 100kms; I was happy to expect a real figure of nine litres as I repeatedly told the dealership.

I have only been urban driving and to my dismay the real achieved figure has been between 11 and 12 litres per 100kms. At this point the car has 5 500kms and the computer shows 10.9 litres per 100kms.

I have shown my displeasure with these results and have threatened to return the car which otherwise is quite a pleasure, however expensive. I approached the Bedfordview dealership to ask for a quick test to confirm there were no defects and no fault was found by them related to the high fuel consumption.

Still not convinced, I've been trying to get management to listen but this has been extremely difficult with no interest from them. I contacted the UK and they sent the query here, without advising me.

I am pressurising to get a senior technician, outside dealerships, to check the car for a possible defect causing the high consumption but to no avail. I'm sure if I had a fleet of these vehicles, the attitude would be different.

I'm waiting for their National After Sales Manager to contact me for a senior technician to spend some time with me and the car. I hope I'll get some satisfaction.

The excuse that cars are tested in laboratory conditions is like a patient going to ICU instead of a general ward in a bad hospital.

It's a pleasure sharing my experience with you and as you've asked for readers' thoughts on the subject, I was delighted to share mine.

Antonio Boavida

AUTOLETTER OF THE WEEK

TPI - ONE BIG SCAM?

Dear Editor

Your third party insurance article (Week 23) refers and I'd like to share my ongoing nightmare with your readers.

On the 23rd March 2014, I was involved in an accident when a vehicle turned across in front of me at a green traffic light. The driver, who is comprehensively insured, said he didn't see me. I'm insured for fire, theft and third party.

I was in complete shock at the scene and my vehicle was damaged, but still fine to drive. The tow truck driver (is there a governing body or ombudsman for these vultures?) advised me not to drive my vehicle as it would compromise my claim with the insurance. To date, I've seen no evidence to support this. The towing cost R 6 800! I could have driven my car and parked it in my driveway - what a scam! Will the insurance cover this? Added to that, daily storage fees also apply. Needless to say, I went and recovered my vehicle.

All documents required by the insurance company were submitted on the 31st March 2014. Today, being the 4th June, I still don't have my vehicle. I've phoned and nagged, sent emails and just get shoved from pillar to post. As far as I'm concerned, the person responsible should cover all expenses. I've had no vehicle since the date of the accident! Apparently, the insurance company only received the assessor's report on the 15th May. Is this my problem? This is the last email I received, dated 2nd June.

"Please be advised that the report was received from the assessor on 13th May 2014. On receipt of the assessor's report, your claim and the applicable legal principles will be reviewed. A settlement offer will be drafted in this time and communicated to you via e-mail or fax within 15 working days. Should additional time be required for assessment of quantum or investigation of merits, this will be communicated to you within the abovementioned 15 working day period. Once your signed offer has been received, your claim will be referred to our payments team and payment will be made within five to seven working days. Depending on your bank, a further two working days should be allowed for funds to reflect in your account. You are the Plaintiff in this legal matter and following up your claim remains your responsibility with consideration of the above timelines."

Fifteen working days have come and gone! I phoned again and was assured that I'd be receiving an email before the end of the day. Needless to say - I didn't, so back to the phone. By the time they do pay out, I still have to repair my car which we all know will take another few weeks. I'm sure if they were paying for a hire car for over two months, they might have settled earlier? I am the innocent party in this event and I'm left high and dry. I bet the perpetrator has had his car claim sorted. It all just feels like one big scam.

It is your right to choose to have, or choose not to have, an e-tag, so don't let anyone - whether it be the police or Sanral officials - tell you otherwise. Your outstanding fees are none of their business, either!

YOU may have noticed that I've withdrawn from the whole e-toll debacle on the back page of Auto-dealer. I leave that to my editor. You see, I get the privilege to share my opinion with you on this back page a couple of times a month and when I do, I want to try and take you away from the troubles of everyday life and either inform, or entertain you - not enrage you.

This week, however, I'm afraid I must touch on this topic. Don't think I've become complacent; I'm very aware of how many people are against this e-toll system and I'm not its greatest fan, either. I mean, who wants to pay more to use our roads? I still get stuck in horrific traffic daily, so where's that promised "decrease in travelling time?"

I digress. The big issue at the moment is the outrage caused among motorists at recent incidents involving traffic officials and Sanral vehicles. It's to do with the roadblocks aimed at testing both "vehicle and driver fitness," explained Thapelo Moiloa, Gauteng Traffic Police spokesman.

This is all well and good but why have newspapers and websites been abuzz with calls, emails and social media posts alleging that officers at these roadblocks questioned drivers about e-tags? Some reports even suggested that those without e-tags had their names and ID numbers recorded. The alarming thing is, police were using Sanral vehicles which they claim are able to detect problems related to outstanding fees and licence disc irregularities.

I know this because I was involved in an incident at that time, while driving a test vehicle which was fitted with an e-tag. When I was stopped, the vehicle licence disc was checked. I was then asked for my licence and whether I had been "tagged." I was able to point to the rear view mirror which led to the officer handing back my licence (without looking at it) and telling me to move on.

For all he knows I might've been sporting an expired licence and besides, I could have a penchant for collecting speeding fines - but as long as I have an e-tag and a valid licence disc I'm ready to go? While I can assure you that my licence is up to date and my fines settled, I can also tell you, the roadblock seemed a lot like intimidation tactics to me. Not to mention the traffic-related chaos that ensued after many motorists discovered the roadblocks and tried to avoid them. Is this really the right way to enforce the law?

Even if the police were using Sanral vehicles to simply check licence discs and remove un-roadworthy drivers and vehicles, they must surely look at it from a road-user's perspective. By aligning themselves with Sanral - whether intentional or not - the public perception changes to believe that the police are working in conjunction with Sanral against the people, which isn't what the police want to convey.

It is your right to choose to have, or choose not to have, an e-tag, so don't let anyone - whether it be the police or Sanral officials - tell you otherwise.

Your outstanding fees are none of their business, either. There's a due process for debt collection so tell them you're settling the matter yourself.

Take this message from the head of the Johannesburg Metro Police, Wayne Minaar, "The JMPD has no service agreement with Sanral to perform duties for them." So, if you're asked by a police officer about an e-toll-related matter, you can tell him or her that they do not work for Sanral.

I would compare the JMPD asking about Sanral e-tags at a roadblock, to me, approaching any one of you at a grocery store and asking why there aren't more vegetables in your trolley - totally random and certainly something that doesn't concern me. That's how little the police have to do with Sanral's affairs.
