Family mourns child's death

Melissa Hart

The Theunissen family from Elsburg is battling to come to terms with the sudden death of one of their members, Christiaan (17).

The Grade 12 pupil was knocked down just outside the gates of Hoërskool Elsburg at about 6.30am on Wednesday.

The GCN visited the grieving family on Thursday, to talk to his parents, Pieter and Hester.

Pieter told the GCN that at the moment everything feels unreal, but they know they have to pick up the pieces and carry on.

He said that from what he understands of the events of the day, Christiaan was on his way to buy a cold drink and was crossing Parnell Road, at the zebra crossing, just outside the school.

"Witnesses said that a taxi stopped for him to cross, but, as he was walking, a woman in another vehicle did not stop and her car hit him," Pieter said.

Christiaan was critically injured and needed assistance to breathe, and had to be airlifted to the Charlotte Maxeke Johannesburg Academic Hospital, where he died later that day.

William Ntladi, the media liaison officer for the Ekurhuleni Disaster and Emergency Management Services, said: "Upon arrival of the Ekurhuleni Emergency Services, the boy was diagnosed with severe head injuries and possible chest fractures by the paramedics on scene."

"The helicopter had to be landed on the school sports grounds, in order to transport the child to hospital."

Pieter told the GCN that the EMPD and emergency services were excellent on the scene.

"We especially thank Netcare 911 and an off-duty paramedic, who stopped to assist Christiaan," Pieter said.

After the accident Christiaan's family were notified and they rushed to the scene.

One of Christiaan's friends, Ruan Ackermann, a matric pupil at Hoërskool Elspark, stayed with Christiaan's parents and assisted them until they got to the hospital.

Pieter told the GCN that Christiaan suffered severe brain trauma, an injury to his head and multiple bruises.

After conducting numerous tests he was declared brain dead at about 2.15pm.

"There was one small consolation, in that we were told, at the hospital, that Christiaan's end was more than likely immediate," said Pieter.

"I wouldn't have wanted him to suffer."

"This is very difficult; no parent should have to bury a child."

After they were told that Christiaan was brain dead, his parents decided to donate Christiaan's organs.

Christiaan Theunissen (17) died after being knocked down by a vehicle outside the gates of Hoërskool Elsburg, in Parnell Road, Elsburg, on Wednesday.

"I am an organ donor myself and Christiaan and I had discussed it and he said he would also like to donate his organs someday," Pieter said.

"We decided that his tragic death could, perhaps, help other people by giving them life."

Tragedy strikes Elsburg family

Pieter described Christiaan as an enthusiastic, friendly, quiet child, an average scholar, who was very good at rugby and aspired to be an aircraft designer.

He played the position of wing for both his school and for the Germiston Simmer Rugby Club.

"He loved to make jokes and was always full of beans," Pieter said.

"He never got into fights and was just a normal 17-year-old, full of nonsense, who enjoyed life."

Christiaan's siblings, brothers Pieter (12) and Dewald (10), and sister Xonia (7), are distraught at the loss of their brother.

"Last night I showed Xonia the stars and said that's where Christiaan is now, looking down on us," Pieter said.

He has arranged counselling for the children.

With regard to the woman who knocked Christiaan over, Pieter told the GCN that it is not going to help them being angry with her.

"Anger is not going to bring our son back; we will now let the law take its course," he said.

"Every day when she sees a child, or drives past a school, she is going to remember the accident and she must live with this.

"That is going to be her biggest punishment."

The family thanks Hoërskool Elsburg for holding a memorial service for Christiaan on Thursday morning, and for all the support staff and pupils at the school have given the family.

"They have gone above and beyond with their support," Pieter said.

He also thanks Ram Couriers, the company for which he and Hester work and who have supported them all the way and are taking care of the funeral costs.

"I had managers from the company constantly at my side at the hospital and I thank them for their great support and assistance," Pieter said.

He added that the family has also experienced an incredible outpouring of support from the community, which they really appreciate.

Christiaan's funeral will be held at the NG Kerk Elsburg Central in Kerk Street at 11am on Thursday (tomorrow).

Lieut Col Zonele Patrick Qangase, acting station commander for the Elsburg SAPS, told the GCN that a case has been registered with them and they are currently investigating the incident.

"The investigations will lead us to see whether an arrest should be made or not," he said.

Speed measures must be put in place

After the tragic death of Christiaan Theunissen (17) on Wednesday, after he was knocked over by a car as he crossed the street outside Hoërskool Elsburg, the community and his parents have called for action to be taken with regard to road safety in the area.

Theunissen is the fourth child to have lost his life in road accidents in Germiston, in the space of a few weeks.

The GCN received a huge number of comments on its website www.germistoncitynews.co.za, stating that drivers do not obey the rules of the road in Parnell Road, Elsburg, near the schools (Hoërskool Elsburg and Laerskool Elsburg).

When the GCN visited the scene of the accident, on Thursday, we attempted to cross the street where Christiaan had been knocked over at the zebra crossing.

While waiting to cross, no one stopped or even slowed down for us.

The GCN noticed another man also trying to cross at the pedestrian crossing, and no one stopped for him, either.

Many people commented that people drive at high speeds in the area and do not obey the 60km/h speed restriction.

Ester de Lange contacted the GCN to say that she has been battling with the municipality for years to erect speed bumps in Parnell Road and van Heerden Street.

"People do not stop for the children to cross the road, not at the traffic light or at the pedestrian crossing," she said.

"Motorists also drive far over the speed limit and don't even bother to stop at one of the stop streets in van Heerden Street."

Juan Strydom told the GCN that people use Parnell Road like a "race track".

"We must act now, how many more children must be hurt or, even worse, robbed of their lives, before something is done," he said.

"What happened on Wednesday must never happen again.

"I drove past the scene and couldn't help thinking this could have been my child."

Another person, who lives in Parnell Road, commented that both cars and bikes race up and down the road.

"It is high time something gets done about it," they added.

"What about speed bumps that will definitely slow them down?"

The GCN contacted both the metro and the EMPD with regard to the matter and what can be done to prevent future accidents.

Wilfred Kgasago, the EMPD spokesman said: "I will forward the complaints regarding speeding to our Speed Unit commander for action and, in respect of speed bumps being erected, the department of roads and civil works will be requested to look into the matter."

Themba Gadebe, spokesman for the metro, said: "The provision of speed humps will be evaluated by the metro's roads planning division in terms of council policies and guidelines.

"If speed humps are warranted, they will be implemented. Feedback will be given regarding the evaluation.

"The said road will be inspected and corrective measures will be taken."

Pain in the past!

"Hi my name is Estelle Goodwin. I have been suffering with arthritis for several years.

Most remedies I have attempted have been unsuccessful and I eventually resorted to painkillers. A friend of mine suggested I try Lifetones. I bought a bottle from Queensburgh Pharmacy and felt relief within three days. I am now on my second bottle and have weaned myself off painkillers completely. Lifetones is all I use and it has contributed to the fact that I am now moving around pain free. It's wonderful to be able to spend time with my active grandchildren and to feel so energetic. I would recommend Lifetones to anyone. Thank you for a wonderful, safe alternative to pain killers."

Two youngsters get scholarships

A panel of five people sat down recently, to interview a very nervous group of candidates for the prestigious Peermont Education Trust Scholarship.

As well as trustees, Peermont management and a representative from the DBE, the panel also included two alumni members (previous beneficiaries of the trust scholarship).

Together they selected eight promising young people for full scholarships, with two of the recipients, Lesedi Molaba and Tshiamo Peloeahae, being residents of Katlehong.

In addition to having their fees paid, these lucky students will also benefit from the support of the Peermont team, in the form of mentorship and coaching, as well as workshops by Learning to Learn and Dynamic Intervention.

Together, all the service providers ensure that the students have the very best advantage and this is what enables the trust to maintain an 85 per cent pass rate.

The students will be mentored by the trust administrator, Jenny Findlay.

"This is the critical difference that the trust bursary offers, and it is extremely important for young people who come from disadvantaged communities," said Findlay.

"By meeting with the students monthly, problems are identified early and assistance can be offered."

Speaking after getting the good news, Molaba, who will be doing a BSc actuarial and finance degree at Wits, said: "I would like to run a big corporation someday, be an influential member of the public and have an input in economic policies that are being drawn up."

"This will help me to achieve my goal of effecting change in South Africa and steering the country in a direction that I see as best for all; I look forward to eliminating barriers and breaking marginalisation."

For Peloeahae, who is going to do her second year of a BCom economics, at the University of Johannesburg, her future is the key to making a difference in her family, revealing to the upcoming generation that you can achieve beyond what surrounds you.

She also has aspirations of being an economist and then proceeding to being a chief economist, dreams that can become a reality thanks to the trust scholarship.

Students are encouraged to "plough back" services to their communities and, as a result, they have been conducting academic support programmes in their respective schools during vacations.

Over 100 young people have been granted full scholarships for tertiary courses by the trust so far.

Man arrested for Buhle Park rape

The Elsburg SAPS recently arrested a man for an alleged rape that took place in Buhle Park Phase Four.

The arrest was made after the victim and her friend reported the rape to officers at the Elsburg Police Station.

The woman explained that she had been out with friends when the rape took place.

She admitted that she had been drinking and had experienced a blackout.

When she awakened the next morning she knew that something had happened as her underwear was missing.

She immediately asked her friends what had happened the night before and was told that a man had taken advantage of her state and had even dragged her away from her friends at one point.

The friend verified the victim's account of events.

Officers were able to track down the man and he was arrested.

Const Styles Maome, communications officer for the Primrose police, who was on cluster stand-by duty at the time of the arrest, said: "As police we strongly condemn the abuse of alcohol, as we believe it makes one vulnerable to crime."

The man will appear in the Germiston Magistrates Court soon.

Organisation calls for help

I Support Education Against Poverty is a non-profit organisation, determined to improve the lives of the local community.

The organisation has previously helped R P Maphan-zela Primary School, Set-sing Primary School and Mzamo Primary School with improvements to their premises.

Their current project is a bit more ambitious.

The organisation wishes to improve the lives of pupils at Pheasant Folly Primary School, in Katlehong, by building new classrooms.

"The school is short of classrooms and we would like to build the classrooms they need, but to do this we need funding," said Joseph Sibisi, a member of the organisation.

I Support Education Against Poverty is, therefore, appealing to the public for support.

Anyone interested in helping this cause or getting more information about the organisation and their project can contact the organisation's chairman, Jabu Mahlang, on 011 051-3324, or email to jabu@isupportededucation.org.za, or marketing manager Thulane Sibisi on 083 599 5916, or at thulane2005@gmail.com.

Cleansing levy frustrates residents

The GCN has received a number of calls regarding the "area cleansing levy" on their municipal accounts.

An amount of R5 is being charged to residents on a monthly basis.

Eric Palm, a resident of Malvern East, said: "I presume it is for cleansing the area."

"However, I work from home and have stayed in my house for the last 25 years and have never seen a cleaner clean the area outside my home."

"Can someone shed some light on this subject and be more specific about why we are paying the levy?"

Another Germiston resident, Barry Taylor, said that as far as he was aware part of your rates go towards cleaning your area.

Taylor had the following questions regarding the levy:

❑ Is there a monthly schedule, similar to the one for solid waste collection (you need to know when your area will be cleaned)?

❑ What will we actually get from this levy?

❑ Is there a "hotline" where you can phone in and ask for area cleansing?

❑ Does this cover cleaning/sweeping of the street and cleaning of the rain gutters?

❑ Does it cover the removal of weeds on the pavements, etc?

❑ Does it include picking up and removing general rubbish thrown down by people in the street?

❑ Does it include removal of notices from street lights?

❑ Do the cleaners empty the waste bins at the corners of junctions?

"The above are all areas which I would say fall under the term 'area cleansing'," Taylor said.

"These are questions that the metro should detail/answer before implementing the levy."

"I have no problem paying this extra levy, as long as it is controlled and the ratepayer gets something out of it to make Germiston and the rest of the metro cleaner for all."

"The by-laws for dumping of rubbish should also be enforced."

A resident of Elspark has also queried the levy.

She said her area has never been cleaned and she doesn't understand why residents are paying a levy when no work is being done.

The GCN asked the metro for comment on the matter and Themba Gadebe, from the department of communications and brand management, said: "Please note that council is going to address the cleansing levy in the adjustment budget."

"The intention is that, with the withdrawal of the R5 levy and the correction of the 15 percent tariff increase, customers will not be worse off."

The metro did not explain the levy or the thinking behind it, or tell the GCN if areas are, in fact, cleaned.

Primrose SAPS warn the community

The Primrose SAPS ask the community to be on the lookout for a silver Mercedes E-class with the registration NSV 354 GP (these are fake plates).

"The occupants of this vehicle have been terrorising the Primrose area," said Const Styles Maome.

This vehicle has been seen at the scene of several crimes, including hijackings, that have taken place in Primrose, recently.

The vehicle's occupants are believed to be heavily armed, so the community should not attempt to approach them, or attempt to stop them.

"If anyone sees, or has information about this vehicle, they should immediately report it to our patrol vehicles or the nearest police station," added Maome.

Joyce thanked for her two decades of service

There was a wonderful celebration at the Rest-a-While Community Centre for the Aged, recently, when Joyce Ganter was thanked for her 20 years of service to the centre.

Joyce has served on the executive committee for many years and is a great help at all Rest-a-While's functions.

Manager of the centre Wendy Morgan presented her with a certificate of appreciation, as well as a bouquet of flowers.

Loutjie Joubert, another member of the centre, wrote this tribute to her:

"This isn't a farewell, but only an acknowledgement to say thanks for your efforts of voluntary service to Rest-a-While for 20 years, and for many more to come."

"We want to praise you for your contribution to the centre and also for your kindness and friendship to all of us."

"There is an Afrikaans poem:

"Gee my nou die haelwit rose wat jy eendag op my graf sal plaas;

"Rangskik nou die lelies in jou duurste blommevaas!

"Gee dit nou terwyl my hart so honger soos 'n vuur knaag."

"Gee dit nou terwyl dit my lewe kan versoet en onderskraag!

"Gee dit nou terwyl dit matelose vreude kan verskaf. "En plaas gerus die dorings eendag op my graf."

"Eendag sal ek van jou blomme op my graf niks nie weet."

"Eendag doen die dorings aan my hart geen meer leed!"

"We want to give you the flowers and love now, while you are still with us."

"The letters in your name: J-O-Y-C-E symbolise the quality of your character:

"J = for joy, jocund, jolly (for she's a jolly good fellow)

"O = observant, operative, orderly, optimistic

"Y = you ... only you, yourself (there's only one Joyce)

"C = Christian, capable, candid, careering, charitable

"E = eagerness, ecstasy, élan."

"We sincerely wish you another 10-plus years with us, for you are a 'joyful Joyce.'"

Wendy Morgan (left), manager of Rest-a-While Community Centre for the Aged, thanks Joyce Ganter for the 20 years of service she has given to Rest-a-While.

This man was recently arrested by the Germiston police, for business robbery.

Man arrested for business robbery

“While doing cluster stand-by duties recently, I visited the Germiston SAPS and found that they had arrested a man, aged 29, for business robbery, in President Street,” said the communications officer for the Primrose SAPS, Const Styles Maome.

It is alleged that three males entered a shop; one stood at the door, another grabbed the victim by his clothes, and the third took money from the till, before they all fled.

The victim ran after the men and managed to corner and catch one of them.

He then called the police, who responded quickly.

“We thank the police for their quick response and the victim for such bravery, however, we encourage our community not to put their lives in danger; they should rather call the patrol vehicles, because they are in the sectors,” said Maome.

The man appeared in the Germiston Magistrates Court and the matter was postponed for a bail application.

Be careful in your home

With regard to the article “Couple robbed in the wee hours” (GCN, February 7), community members had the following to say on our website www.germistoncitenews.co.za:

One commented that they were sure it was the same men who had robbed a house opposite to them in Chestnut Road.

The robbery also took place in the early hours of a Thursday morning and the three men took out the big window in the lounge of the house to gain access.

Another person said that there are two men scouting the houses in and around her street.

One is quite short, with a dark complexion, and wore black clothing, while the other is of medium height and was wearing a Spingbok rugby shirt.

“He has been seen peeping over walls, walking away and then coming back again, on two occasions,” she said.

“They sit opposite your house and then come over to your gate and ask for a lighter or something of that nature.”

She added that the men had been seen in Deodar Road and Elberfield Avenue, in Primrose, just a few streets from Chestnut Road and Belhambra Street.

Summiting a mountain to feed children

The Feed a Family Organisation is registered as a non-profit organisation, with the Department of Social Services.

The group’s mission is to feed as many underprivileged families as possible and it encourages fellow citizens to assist in feeding at least one family every month, as it costs a mere R15 to feed an entire family for a whole day.

“Ultimately, we seek to empower the impoverished and spread our reach to as many needy South Africans as possible,” said chairman Malcolm Poovan.

“We currently supply necessities, like milk, bread and pap, on a monthly basis, at the Maccau informal settlement in the east of Johannesburg.

“Our overriding motivation is to alleviate poverty and reduce crime (through skills development and empowerment),” said chairman Malcolm Poovan.

“Startling statistics illustrate that more than three million children in South Africa are hungry every day.”

The Feed a Family Organisation’s project for 2014 is the Feed a Learner EPS Project, which is to provide daily lunch to approximately 1 350 impoverished pupils at Ekurhuleni Primary School (EPS) for this year.

The school is situated in Dukathole, an informal settlement in the industrial hub of Germiston.

“This poverty-ridden informal settlement, marred by high unemployment and crime rates, is home to mainly women and children,” said Poovan.

“It will cost R4 per day (R20 per week) to feed one pupil a nutritious daily meal.

“In line with our overall vision and mission we ultimately want to empower the pupils and teachers of EPS with personal skills development, and the Dukathole residents with sustainable organic farming tools and knowledge,” said Poovan.

To give the project the kick-start it needs, The Climb, a fund-raising initiative involving a comedian, a mountaineer and a lawyer, is taking place.

The three passionate South African ambassadors, namely Tshepo Mogale, Sibusiso Vilane and Tebogo Kwape are currently (February 10 to 13) climbing Mount Kilimanjaro (at 5 895m high it is the world’s tallest freestanding mountain) to promote awareness and raise money for the Feed a Learner EPS Project.

The purpose of The Climb is also to shed light on the plight of hungry children in South Africa and how we, as citizens, can get involved and offer our help to children in need.

Tshepo Mogale is a local celebrity, stand-up comedian, writer and producer, whose notable works include the Smirnoff Comedy Blackout, the Joe Parker Comedy Express circuit and being published in the Urban Writers Series, among other things.

Sibusiso Vilane is a motivational and inspirational speaker, mountaineer and expedition guide and leader.

He was the first black African to summit Mount Everest and the seven peaks of the world and is the author of the book “To the Top from Nowhere”, among other accomplishments.

Tebogo Kwape is an attorney and partner at Kwape Matritz (MKM) Attorneys.

He has been a police reservist since 2007 and is a member of the SAPS Rifle Club.

“Our goal is to raise R1.5-million,” said Poovan.

“With this amount we will be able to provide daily lunch to the 1 350 impoverished pupils at EPS for the whole year.

“In order to reach our target, we are looking for 1 500 individuals/companies to pledge R100 a month to sponsor a pupil for the Feed a Learner EPS Project.”

For more information about the organisation, or to get involved, visit www.feedafamily.org.za, or the organisation’s official Facebook page -- The Feed a Family Organisation page.

You can also call Poovan on 011 640-2999.

Be on the lookout for this man

The Primrose CPF warns the community to be on the lookout for a man suspected of robbery.

He is white, with no teeth, and at the time of the robbery, in Marlands on February 4, he was wearing a black vest and blue jeans.

He drives an old shape model white Corsa with no registration plates.

Contact the sector patrol vans if you spot him.

Encouraging community involvement

Survival Kids is a group of people who plan events to raise funds to help children in need.

These events are aimed at children, between the ages of five and 15 years, and funds are used to plan camping weekends, dance evenings, group trips to the zoo or aquarium, picnics and fashion parades, to name a few.

Survival Kids also uses a portion of the funds raised to help families in need.

These are families who are in need of food and/or clothing.

"The events and projects also create part-time jobs, as we need people on certain occasions, for example, child care, help in the kitchens, help with monitoring children on trips and selling food at food stands at events and projects," said founder and head of Survival Kids Crista Duvenage.

When asked what children can expect on a Survival Kids outing, Duvenage said: "On camping trips we aim to teach our youth about the outdoors; how to put up tents, how to fish, how to build a fire for food, basic safety and also to focus on nature conservation.

"On group trips, such as going to the zoo, we aim to teach our youth about the different animals.

"We understand that parents do not always have the time to do all these things with their children and this is why we created this group, for children to be able to experience these types of outings and projects and to also keep them out of mischief and off the dangerous streets."

Survival Kids is made up of a very dedicated group of people who work together to make these events and projects possible.

But, they need help, and ask the community to get involved and to help to make these events and projects possible.

The community has a chance to do just that with the Survival Kids Masquerade Ball, taking place at Hoërskool Vryburger, on February 21.

If you would like to attend the Masquerade Ball, or would like additional information about Survival Kids, contact Christa Duvenage on 083 750 0700, or Chris Duvenage on 072 426 8022.

Kris Kristofferson live in South Africa

Legendary musician Kris Kristofferson will be performing live in SA, in the Big Top Arena, at Carnival City, on March 22.

Kristofferson is known for having written such immortal songs as Me and Bobby McGee, Help Me Make It Through the Night, Sunday Morning Coming Down and For the Good Times, and for most stars that would have cemented a star in Hollywood.

But, in addition to his enduringly popular songs, he has released 28 albums, and acted in 119 films and TV shows.

Add the names Janis Joplin, Barbra Streisand and Rita Coolidge, being inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame, winning a Grammy and spells as a Golden Gloves boxer, a Rhodes Scholar, a college football player, a military officer, and a helicopter pilot and you have to admit that he has lived life to the full.

The legendary Kris Kristofferson will be performing live at the Big Top Arena at Carnival City on March 22.

His music is honest and meaningful and reflects a life well lived.

The show starts at 8pm.

UK comedy giant Jimmy Carr takes to the stage

Best-known for his signature laugh, deadpan delivery and edgy one-liners, UK comedian Jimmy Carr is, without a doubt, one of the UK's most hotly contested acts on the international stand-up circuit.

Having played to over 1.5-million people on live tours around the world, Jimmy knows a thing or two about making people laugh; and local audiences can expect to laugh until they cry or their sides split, whichever comes first - during his latest show, Gaggling Order, which will take place in the Big Top Arena, at Carnival City, on March 29.

But a word of warning: Jimmy doesn't pull any punches, so be sure to bring an open mind, in fact, UK newspaper, the Independent on Sunday, referred to him as being "as sick as he is slick".

He's famous for pushing boundaries, so expect to be entertained beyond your expectations by this award-winning funny man.

His stand-up achievements to date include winning a British Comedy Award for Best Live Stand Up Tour and a Loaded LAFTA Award for Best Stand-Up.

He has also received a Perrier Award nomination.

The show will take place at 7.30pm.

Enjoy a laugh with Jimmy Carr at the Big Top Arena at Carnival City on March 29.

Muddy conditions make for interesting racing

The seeding event for the 2014 SA National Off-road Motorcycle and Quad Championship, held on February 1, outside Bronkhorstspuit, turned into a wet and muddy affair for some Ekurhuleni riders, thanks to the heavy rain on the Friday.

The wet weather meant that the quad competitors were faced with deeper river crossings on a cloudy race day.

The day saw over 250 off-road riders from across the country competing, to determine the starting order for the opening rounds of the National and Northern Regions Championships, as well as the PS Portable Shade Gauteng Off-road Club (GOC).

There was not much difference between the riders, and a blanket of just over a minute and a half covered the top 10.

Ekurhuleni's Ruan Roberts (Yamaha) was sixth fastest, with fellow Ekurhuleni rider Dillon Inggs (Kawasaki) seventh.

Another local rider, Darren Pienaar (Base Fit Racing KTM), was second in OR2 (12th overall), with Jono van Wyk (Brother KTM) rounding-off the OR2 podium and finishing just behind Pienaar in the overall standings.

Justin Broughton (Kawasaki), also from Ekurhuleni, finished third in the Senior Class.

Competitors in the National Off-road Championship have five weeks to prepare for the first round of the season, that will take place on March 8, in the Wolmaransstad area, in North-West Province.

For more information, visit www.dirttracing.co.za/DirtRacing, at Facebook/@DirtRacing (Twitter).

Prepare to Ride for Sight

The Dis-Chem Ride for Sight, the largest cycling event in Ekurhuleni, will take place on February 16, and the organisers would like to caution residents about traffic disruptions between 5.30am and 1.30pm.

The event starts and finishes at the Boksburg City Stadium, in Jubilee Road, Boksburg.

The North bound side of Jubilee Road will be used for cyclists only and will be closed to vehicles.

The South bound side will be used for two-way traffic.

The route then goes west into Barry Marais Road and accesses the R554 via Essenhout and Keurboom streets.

The route continues west on the R554 to Alberton and then turns south on the M61.

The cyclists return to Boksburg on the R23 and the R554, past Carnival City.

More than 5 000 cyclists will be using these routes and residents are advised to avoid using these roads if possible.

There will be cyclists on both sides of North Boundary Road (R554) for short periods, on the Heidelberg, Leondale and R103 roads, between 8.15am and 10am.

"Please use extreme caution as cyclists ride faster than you think -- 30km to 40km per hour is not unusual," said race secretary Claudette Medefindt. "Come out and watch the cream of South Africa's cyclists in action and give them a warm Ekurhuleni welcome."

Late entries will be taken at Tour De Frans, on Atlas Road, on Saturday, February 15, for the 62km event and, possibly, for the 116km event, if available.

This is also a last-minute reminder for cyclists to pump their tyres, wash their training shoes and refine their final strategies and techniques before the race.

All proceeds go towards fighting retinal blindness and the race is unique in that all helpers on the day are volunteers.

For more details call 083 306 5262.

Paddlers enthusiastically kick-start their race, at Homestead Dam, on February 1.

Hard training for tough Dusi

With the world's toughest endurance river canoe marathon, the Dusi, taking place in just a week's time, the training race, held at Homestead Dam, on February 1, was well supported by Gauteng canoeists, as well as the local municipality.

Tom Ngcobo and Thembinkosi Ngcobo, from the Victoria Lake Canoe Club, finished in second place at the Dusi Training race.

Other top finishers from the Germiston-based canoe club included Collen Gibbs and Bernhard Kloss in 16th position, and Colin Ledwaba and Katiso Hlahatsi in third place in the u-23 category.

The metro, proactive in its support of sport in the region, backed the local canoe club with prizes and food for the hard working paddlers, who finished a 22km paddle with two portages.

The winning boats once again reaffirmed the proof that the Gauteng Canoe Union development integration support programmes for transformation are showing fantastic results, unlike many other sports, where quotas are hard to fill.

The previously disadvantaged paddlers dominate the top positions in the races under their own steam and with their own hard work.

Soweto's Loveday Zondi and Thando Ngamlana won the race in one hour 43 minutes, with second place taken by VLC's Thembi Ngcobo and Tom Ngcobo, while the Germiston Lake-based development coach, Richard Cele, and Nhlanhla Cele, finished third.

Various age groups, from u-8 through to 18 years, representing various schools in Gauteng, enjoyed the opportunity to outsmart their competition and to gain value fitness, with many participating in their first ever race as they prepare for the upcoming SA School's Interprovincial Race.

Cyclists get ready to race

Germiston cyclists should prepare their bicycles and build up their stamina, because the Carnival City Macsteel National Classic Cycle Race is again taking place on February 23.

It is the 30th year that the race will be held, and it attracts a field of between 4 500 and 5 000 cyclists in various categories.

The main purpose of the race is to raise funds for charity, particularly in support of Rotary projects and the Rotary Foundation, and to further the development of amateur cycling in South Africa.

This is the last major race on the Gauteng calendar before the Cape Argus, and is very popular as an ideal final warm-up before the cyclists travel down to the Cape in a few weeks' time.

This is also a seeding event for the 94.7 Cycle Challenge.

The race is jointly organised by the Germiston Rotary Club and the Germiston Wheelers Cycle Club.

It begins and ends at Carnival City, which has proved to be a great venue since 2001.

The children's race provides a fun morning for the little ones, and takes place on a specially built track at Carnival City, under adult supervision.

Great prizes and a girl's and a boy's bike can be won in a lucky draw.

Online entries closed on February 11 (yesterday), but late entries can be made at the following venues:

□ Thursday, February 20: Cycle Lab, Centurion Gate Shopping Centre, Centurion from 9am to 5pm.

□ Friday, February 21: Cycle Lab, Nicol Grove, Fourways, from 9am to 5pm.

□ Saturday, February 22: Tour de Frans Cycle, Boksburg, from 8am to 2pm.

On race day entries will be accepted only for the 65km race and the children's race.

The event comprises the following categories:

□ Men's Elite (top clubs) - 160km.

□ Licensed veterans (30-49) - 103km.

□ Licensed women, veterans and open - 103km.

□ Licensed boys and girls and open - 65km.

□ Kiddies races - two to eight years old.

Other attractions on the day are:

□ The Rotary Anns food tent.

□ Music and announcements by East Rand Stereo.

□ Lucky draw prizes galore and so much more.

Regular cyclists and new riders are welcome to come along and battle it out at the race.

SPORTSStar — of the Week —

Michael Stewart and Brandon Collyer
Paddling

K1 paddlers kick-start their race five minutes behind the K2 paddlers at VLC's Night Race held on February 4.

Stewart and Collyer take night race honours at Victoria Lake Club

Puleng Sekabate

The Victoria Lake Canoe Club hosted the VLC Night Race on February 4.

The race was predominantly a K2 15km race with over 51 boats on the water.

The night race also serves as a platform for Dusi participants to refine their last minute Dusi combinations, skills and boats.

Although the race was mainly a K2 event, there were K1 paddlers who had their own race start just five minutes after the K2s.

With vests handed out to entrants, medals for category winners, free meals, and a DG Capital Investment of prize money, the race was bound to be a success.

Michael Stewart and Brandon Collyer won the event and were also first in the Veteran age category in one hour, 10 minutes and 44 seconds, while seconds later brought in Alex Roberts and Robert Crichton, in second place.

Thembinkosi Ngcobo and Tom Ngcobo were less than a second behind, to take third place.

It was a very tight finish.

The u-18 team of Siyabonga Tyiki and Simnikiwe Ntondini were fifth overall, only 10 seconds behind the front bunch, and the first Sub-Veterans, Serge van Hee and Jeromy Dacey, finished eighth, in one hour, 12 minutes and 38 seconds.

Tsidiso Bobo and Mfundo Sithole were the first u-23s home, in ninth place, just half a minute later.

The women, Donna Tutton and Jane Swarbreck, raced alone against the men, finishing 15th, in one hour and 14 minutes, while the first mixed double, Richard Cele and Sandra Eardley, finished 19th place in one hour, 15 minutes.

The Sub-Master team of Franz Lottering and Vallon Kupferberg finished as the 23rd K2 team, in one hour and 17 minutes, and the youngest paddler to finish the race was Alex Masina, as the seventh K1 entrant, in one hour and 21 minutes.

Masters winners were Zach Zacharopoulos and Josh Loots, in one hour and 23 minutes.

"This was a great race; it went well, all the paddlers did their best and one can only predict great results at the Dusi," said the Victoria Lake Canoe Club's vice-chairman, Dorian Pretorius.

For VLC, the Dusi will be another great way to end the season.

"Our season is coming to end and will start again in April, so we have the Dusi and the Umko Race in March," said Pretorius.

"The Umko is a big water race, that is more technical, and we are eagerly looking forward to both events.

"We had a great season, with a couple of great races, and we thank our partner, Ekurhuleni, for the support.

"We have a good and long running partnership with them, especially with the night race, and we also appreciate and say thank you to our sponsor."

Pretorius also told the GCN that the new season, commencing in April, is a singles (K1) season, and most of the big races will be singles.

Corolla gets new lines

STUART MOIR

Meet Joe, a 42-year-old married male with his 2.5 children. What does Joe drive? A Toyota Corolla.

You might think his car is bland, yet functional. Yes, we all may have our gripes about the ‘dull’ Corolla, but there’s obviously something inherently charming about it seeing that it’s the best-selling car of all time.

And now the next-generation Corolla - just launched in South Africa - promises to ooze a lot more character than Joe’s daily runaround.

You see, the eleventh generation Corolla is a lot more assertive in its styling, particularly in the front end as it embraces the Furia concept. This new offering has really grown into its body and apart from aesthetic considerations, the interior space has been reworked to offer customers a more spacious and comfortable ride.

From a styling perspective, the Corolla has truly been ushered into the modern era with the upper grille and the headlamps made as thin as possible to emphasise the width of the body while the chrome horizontal trim bars of the upper grille are visually extended into more expressive headlamp clusters.

At the rear, the trapezoidal form found in the front of the vehicle also makes an appearance, with the boot lip complemented by the new rear lamp clusters.

For a sedan, the Corolla has more curves than a pregnant Kardashian, which is great for aerodynamics and achieving minimum drag levels.

The talking point of any Corolla will be the cockpit and the practicality it offers through interior space. The redesigned cabin now boasts superior trim materials and enhanced ergonomics. Boot capacity has increased to 452 litres.

The new Corolla is not only more spacious and comfortable, but also quieter than its predecessor as the interior has been designed to offer customers class-leading quietness.

Through a robust and uncluttered clarity, the Corolla is finished off by chrome trim and high-gloss black finishes.

It’s a combination that works and the added tech enhances the driver’s comfort. Some of these features include remote central locking, touch-screen radio, USB and Bluetooth along with cruise control (depending on the derivative).

Powering the new generation of Corollas is a choice of four engines. The 1.3-litre petrol engine produces a generous 73kW of power and 128Nm of torque, which translates into a 0-100km/h time of 12.6 seconds and a top speed of 180km/h. A laudable fuel consumption of just 6.0 litres/100km is attainable in the combined cycle and CO₂ emissions of 139g/km is achieved.

For those wanting more bang, the 1.6-litre petrol engine develops 90kW and 154Nm, available in both manual and Multidrive CVT automatic guises. Acceleration times are 10.5 seconds and 11.1 seconds, respectively. Maximum speed is 195km/h and 185km/h.

When equipped with the manual transmission, the unit returns a combined cycle fuel consumption of just 6.6 litres/100km and emits 157g/km of CO₂. The new Multidrive S auto transmission further reduces both fuel consumption and emissions to 6.3 litres/100km and 150g/km, respectively.

Replacing the 2.0-litre petrol of the outgoing model is a new 1.8-litre unit fitted to top-end models. This powertrain produces 103kW and 173Nm of torque.

The 0-100km/h dash is dispensed with in 10.2 seconds for the Multidrive S variant. Top speed is recorded as 195km/h (figures for the 1.8 manual are not yet available).

What we do know about the manual 1.8 is that it consumes on average just 7.0 litres/100km and emits 165g/km of CO₂. Equipped with the new Multidrive S transmission, the unit returns a combined cycle fuel consumption of 6.4 litres/100km and generates CO₂ emissions of only 152g/km.

Probably the biggest talking point is the appearance of the new 1.4-litre D-4D diesel engine. Developing 66kW and maximum torque of 205Nm, it propels the Corolla from standstill to 100km/h in 12.5 seconds and has a maximum speed of 180km/h. Equipped with Toyota’s standard six-speed manual transmission, the 1.4 D-4D returns a class-best combined-cycle fuel consumption of just 4.5 litres/100km and generates CO₂ emissions of only 119g/km.

The new Corolla develops exactly what its predecessor offered - practical commuting at an affordable price. But the new Corolla does it a little differently, because it delivers it with a personality. Not everyone grows up wanting to own a Corolla, but when they do, it becomes a companion for life.

Pricing of the new Corolla will start at R214 000 for the 1.3 Esteem and the range-topping 1.8 Exclusive Multidrive S will retail for R283 900.

The new Corolla comes standard with a 3-year/100 000km warranty and 5-year/90 000km service plan.

New X5 a truly exquisite machine

STUART MOIR

ASTUTE and luxurious, the all-new BMW X5 promises to take premium SUV motoring to a new level.

Yes, muttering the word BMW is synonymous with luxury and while the German powerhouse might argue that the X5 isn't an SUV but rather an SAV (sport activity vehicle) - the first of its kind - there's no denying it's an absolutely lavish beast that commands impressive attention and is a popular model. The proof is in the sales figures, where one out of every five BMWs sold is an X5.

So what's changed with the new model? Well, you might be forgiven for thinking very little, but upon closer inspection you realise this German has an entirely new facade. The familiar kidney grille has been enlarged and now meets the twin circular headlights to give it a more pronounced look. The exterior is imposing and elegant as the long stretched silhouette is complemented by the swage line over the wheel arches.

At the rear the changes are again subtle, as the car retains the horizontal lines emphasised by the robust stance of the X5, while the new thin, three-dimensional LED light strips of the two-section L-shaped rear lights create a striking night-time look.

Preserving the distinctive X5 physique, the new model's interior is generously sized and the renowned elegance can be found throughout the cabin.

Some of the welcomed changes inside include the ambient lighting designs and redesigned instrument cluster while the clear 10.2-inch control display screen is now freestanding and moves away from the one previously integrated into the dashboard design.

It's a car fit for a king that isn't flashy and wants functionality, because this BMW isn't just a pavement hopper and in fact does boast some off-road credentials, as we experienced on the launch.

We got to play in the dirt and while the X5 is by no means a fully-fledged off-roader but this lavishly suited vehicle made short work of the dusty and sandy roads given its tall stance and powerful drivetrains.

But where it really shines is on the black stuff as it prances and floats about in its luxury attire, transporting its passengers in utmost comfort.

Currently, there are three powertrains on offer. The sublimely economical xDrive30d, with its six-cylinder in-line diesel engine incorporates a range of detail improvements. The 3.0-litre engine now develops maximum power of 190kW (up by 10kW) and maximum torque of 560Nm (up by 20Nm). Capable of doing the 0-100km/h sprint in a claimed 6.9 seconds, it will also average 6.2 litres/100km.

For those looking for a little more gusto, the sporty xDriveM50d gets a 3.0-litre straight-six unit, in this case featuring M Performance Twin-Power Turbo technology with three-stage turbo-charging. This engine has a maximum output of 280kW and develops peak torque of 740Nm. It charges to 100km/h in just 5.3 seconds and has a claimed fuel consumption of 6.7 litres/100km.

For the power hungry among us, the xDrive50i is the pick of the bunch. Utilising the new-generation V8 engine, it generates 330kW of power and 650Nm of torque and will complete the 0-100km/h shuffle in five seconds while drinking around 10.4 litres/100km of fuel.

The BMW X5 line-up will expand later. The X5 xDrive35i (225 kW) will be released as well as the xDrive40d (230 kW).

Pricing for the new BMW X5 range starts at R769 900 and includes as standard the company's 5-year/100 000km Motorplan.

Here comes the Sonic boom

SEAN NURSE

HOT HATCHES are for many people the only feasible way to enter the world of high-performance vehicles. The only problem is that these cars are often quite a bit more expensive than the plain, vanilla models in the rest of the range and - in their pursuit of speed - can often be compromised in terms of comfort and daily usability.

This is where the new Chevrolet Sonic RS comes in. It has no intention of being labelled a hot hatch, according to its makers. The RS nomenclature it wears is in many other brands a symbol of the epitome of high performance. However, in the case of Chevrolet, the RS badge equates to the same thing as the S in Audi's range or the M Sport in the BMW range. There are still the SS and Z model designations above that of the RS in Chevrolet's range.

So a lukewarm hatch it is, the figures tell a similar story. A 1.4-litre turbocharged engine as seen in the Cruze and Opel Astra powers the RS. It produces 103kW and 200Nm. Of particular importance is the claimed fuel consumption figure of 6.6 litres/100km with carbon emissions of 155g/km.

The claimed 0-100km/h time of 9.5 seconds and the top speed of 197km/h sound relatively tame, but the car does have a very decent turn of speed. The engine pulls strong all the way to 6 000rpm and there is hardly any sign of lag, meaning that the performance is accessible in both open-road overtaking as well as in urban situations.

Looks-wise, the RS certainly sets itself apart from the rest of the range with a more sporty front bumper and new fog light design. There are five-spoke 17-inch alloys finished in gunmetal, which are complemented by new side skirts and black-painted door mirrors with LED indicators. The rear lights have taken inspiration from the world of motorcycling. There is also a roof spoiler and at the bottom a diffuser that is offset by a large single exit exhaust.

The interior has received some treatment in the form of red accents on the leather-bound steering wheel. The steering wheel, seat piping, floor mats and rev counter all receive RS badging. The seats are half leather and half suede to exude a sporty look - there are even aluminium foot pedals to evoke the inner boy racer.

Perhaps the most important feature of the RS is the new MyLink infotainment system. The unit is basically a central information hub comprising of many infotainment functions. The touch screen also features buttons to return the user to the home screen or to power off the unit with the option of controlling everything without the need to take a hand off the steering wheel.

The system feels like it belongs in a car costing far more, the smartphone integration is impressive with support for Bluetooth as well as USB. Users with iPhones, for example, can even run apps on the seven-inch screen and stream podcasts, international radio stations or even give Siri a command. In terms of a USB, there is the option to watch videos or even scroll through pictures when the vehicle is stationary.

Pricing was always going to be the most important aspect of the RS and at R225 300 it competes directly with the nimble Suzuki Swift Sport without straying into Peugeot 208 GTi and Ford Fiesta ST territory. With a 3-year/60 000km service plan and 5-year/120 000km warranty, I believe that Chevrolet has a winner with the new Sonic RS.

Simoncelli an official legend

ITALIAN rider Marco Simoncelli is to be inducted into the Hall of Fame as a MotoGP Legend. The popular former 250cc world champion was a frontrunner in the premier class before tragically losing his life in 2011 at the Sepang MotoGP in Malaysia.

In becoming a MotoGP Legend, Simoncelli's name will be the 21st on the list. The Gresini rider lost his life on 23 October 2011 in a crash on the second lap of the Malaysian Grand Prix, just one week after finishing in second place at Phillip Island.

The Italian rider dazzled the world championship paddock with his charisma, ability and racing style and was a world champion, having taken the 250 crown in 2008, a title he narrowly missed out on defending in 2009.

Arriving in the premier class in 2010, his progress was rapid and before his untimely death, Simoncelli had already taken two premier-class podiums and two poles in a strong second campaign.

Simoncelli's introduction as a MotoGP Legend will take place at this year's Italian Grand Prix at Mugello, as he joins a list that already includes compatriot Giacomo Agostini, Mick Doohan, Geoff Duke, Wayne Gardner and Mike Hailwood.

AUTOLETTER OF THE WEEK

NIGGLES WITH ROUNDABOUTS

Dear Editor,

I agree with the sentiments expressed in your article Roundabouts can turn problems around in week 5's issue. The idea of roundabouts is good, especially because they have no moving parts and need no power supply.

However, I feel there are a few problems:

- As far as I know, South Africa is the only 'round-abouted' country that has two sets of roundabout rules, depending on whether or not the centre is painted yellow. And the 'average' motorist seems either to ignore the (undesirable) distinction or to choose whichever one suits him or her. Usually, 'first come first served' while 'give way to the right' should be the rule at all times

- The roads in South African towns (with the possible exception of Welkom) were not designed with roundabouts in mind. The roads themselves are too narrow and the intersections are too small. This is especially difficult for the drivers of buses or large vehicles such as delivery trucks (this apparently doesn't worry many of the large SUV drivers, who just barge across the hump in the middle anyway)

- The cavalier attitude in general of South African drivers for the rules of the road, often dictated by the size of the vehicle being driven - again, especially SUVs and the like. It's exemplified by the performance at traffic lights, where green means 'go', amber means 'accelerate' and red mean 'floor it'

- Apart from squatting behind speed-trapping cameras, the traffic police seems to do very little to encourage or enforce observance of the road rules

- With an estimated 80% of driving licences being fake and no periodic roadworthy checks, our roads are virtual minefields and generally quite terrifying to drive on.

So even though I think, and always have thought, that roundabouts are a good idea, I fear that they would have little positive effect on what goes on on our roads, when more fundamental action is urgently needed.

Chris Graham

GOING IN CIRCLES

Dear Editor,

I just read the article on roundabouts being effective in America. I laughed out loud at the prospect of them being brought in bulk to our country.

I have watched motorists going the wrong way around one, taking a short cut past one, taking an even shorter cut over one, not giving way to those in the roundabout who are forced to either slam on brakes or swerve violently.

MORE COMMENTS ON ROUNDABOUTS

Traffic circles, if used correctly, will definitely ease congestion. But therein lies the rub - South African motorists are far too aggressive and will forge ahead at all costs, not giving way to traffic on the right. - Hilton Carroll

Traffic circles may stop the annoyance of out-of-order robots, but I go through a few traffic circles to and from work every day and not many people pay attention to them. Some even fly through them at full speed and if the other person was in the same bad habit, they have a potential of major accidents. - Anonymous

It would alleviate the problem of traffic lights not working. The traffic reports in the morning would be much shorter as they would not have to report all the traffic lights which are not working.

- Anonymous

The government won't have to spend oodles of money on maintenance, or (often promised but not always delivered) traffic officers to direct traffic at dead lights. Speed bumps can appear overnight, so I doubt traffic circles would be that big a deal.

- Jill du Plessis

Traffic circles would certainly help traffic flow in those smaller junctions currently controlled by traffic lights, where one sits in a queue while the side road on green has no traffic exiting. However, is it going to make much difference or only exasperate the problems at major junctions like Grosvenor Crossing and Clay Oven. I believe that the answer for these large junctions is 'flyovers', but will they ever be considered? - Billy Reide

I agree that traffic circles can improve the flow of traffic if planned properly. But if you want to see how bad planning can cause traffic congestion, come view the peak hour and weekend flow at the traffic circle on First Road, Bardene, Boksburg. Also let us be honest, the majority of the Gauteng road users don't have road-use etiquette.

- Anonymous

A great example of a traffic light that really should go is the one on Hans Schoeman in front of Rhema. Every evening there's a tailback all the way to Malibongwe while virtually nothing is happening at that intersection. I've tried over the years to get the authorities to change the timing on the lights, but in vain. There is room to construct a circle, it would result in far better traffic flow and, as you said, it would carry on working regardless of weather conditions. - Kathy Sham

Way back in the early 1950s, the mining town of Welkom built all its main- and through-roads with roundabouts at all intersections. No traffic lights or stop streets and the system worked well.

- Mike Shackleford

I am from the UK and was there about three years ago to be with my parents who live in a small town that has a large volume of traffic going through en route to other places. They have also utilised traffic circles to cope with the problem. One circle has about nine roads going off it and operates very effectively. - Anonymous

If we intend to construct more traffic circles as proposed by Stuart Moir, then the public must be educated in their use before implementation. I was in Massachusetts, USA in 1998. At the time they introduced roundabouts and there was a massive television campaign explaining how to use them. That campaign ran for some weeks before the roundabouts into use. We must do the same.

- Anonymous

The basic rules of a roundabout are to indicate your approach in the same manner as if you are approaching a regular intersection, yield to traffic to the right, and exit with caution. On approaching a double-lane roundabout, you enter in the left or outer lane only if you are taking the next exit off. If you are taking the second or third exit you enter on the right or inner lane and at your exit you go off on the correct lane. If you are in the inside lane, anyone in the outside lane will in theory be turning off with you at your turn off in the left lane.

The realities of everyday taxi life

FEZEKA DUBA

“Taxis are part of our daily lives. We cannot survive without them and this is also true for taxi drivers, whose bread and butter is to ferry people around”

We receive numerous complaints about taxis on a weekly basis. In fact, this issue features so strongly that in a recent poll on our website, 90% of voters said that the government must spend most of the traffic department’s resources on taxi offences. This is magnified by the fact that the e-toll violations processing centre, blue light brigade and drinking and driving combined for the other 10%.

We decided this week, however, to look at the other side of the coin: what taxi life is like, for better or worse.

Every morning, I - like 15 million others - catch a taxi to work and I must admit that it’s exciting, but also frightening at times. Unlike buses, the smaller carriage load enables taxis to go back and forth and in most cases that’s where the problem starts, as they rush to be first ones to board passengers and in the process offend other road users. However, the reason they rush is because most of these taxi drivers’ employers give them specific targets they must reach each day. So the question to motorists is: if you were in their shoes, wouldn’t you do the same?

In a taxi, some passengers greet and chat away, thus bringing about a spirit of community, something you don’t experience when driving alone in a car. The exciting thing is that friendships that are created among passengers can last outside the taxi for years.

What I like about taxis is the time I can use to do something else. So instead of having a driver’s stress and spending time behind the wheel that they’ll never get back, as a passenger I use this time to read a newspaper to stay abreast with all that’s happening around the world.

However, a journey by taxi isn’t always as pleasant as it may sound. Some taxis are open graves, with broken windows, worn seats, cracked wind-screens and doors that require specialised jigs to open and close.

It is a fact that some taxis are overloaded and needless to say, it is the drivers’ fault. Some late passengers insist on being squeezed into a full taxi and although some drivers are very strict, others will allow this in order to reach their daily targets. These situations can also be merciless, because if you are already on board and have a problem with this, it is expected of you to simply get out.

The other negative and most complained about by motorists is driver negligence, like stopping in the middle of a lane, cutting in front of other drivers and driving in the yellow lane or passing a red robot. Passengers are sometimes unreasonable in instructing the driver to stop in places where it’s not appropriate for them to do so. It’s also a very common and easy excuse for taxi drivers to drive the way they do, but in actual fact, they drive like this anyway, full taxi or not.

All of these issues also bring about a frightening reality for some of these drivers: dodging the metro police. They do this on daily basis, but if they are caught and are lucky, a bribe or a Coke will get them out of trouble.

The darkest aspect of taxi life is also one that most motorists don’t have to deal with and thus not really think about: the taxi wars. It is widely believed that these disputes only affect those involved, but in fact they do impact and disrupt the whole community. Many civilian lives have been lost due to these wars. The aftermath also don’t just affect association members. Many commuters are left stranded and for many, this usually means ‘no work no pay.’

Probably the biggest misconception around taxi life is that it’s responsible for the most road deaths. However, according to the 2010/2011 annual traffic report, 405 people died in crashes involving minibus taxis while a massive 6 649 were killed in car accidents. This means that for each road death in a minibus taxi, 16 people were killed in accidents involving cars.

What is exciting, though, is that transformation is taking place, however slow it might be. The industry is becoming regulated - members of the Ivory Park Taxi Association are now expected to wear ties on Mondays and Fridays. The aim is to promote professionalism and neatness among the drivers.

When asked about the significance of wearing a tie, Xolani Zulu, who’s route goes from Ivory Park to Kempton Park, said, “This enables other taxi drivers to bath and be neat.” This may seem trivial to the average motorist, but in the taxi community, it’s a big step in the right direction. And in my view, the change in dress code will completely work if it can be applied five days a week.

In essence, every taxi is a death trap, but so is every other vehicle on the road. Many complaints about taxis are founded and completely valid, but for most of us, it is part of our daily lives. We cannot survive without them and this is also true for taxi drivers, whose bread and butter is to ferry people around.

Remember, for every taxi driver that makes your blood boil, there are 15 other people whose livelihood depend on them. And in the end I can’t make excuses, I can just tell my story.

As infuriating as taxis may be, they are integral to millions’ survival. Photo: Autodealer
